December 25, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

RLP Maximum, a leading real estate brokerage based in Woodbridge, ON, has expanded their range of services to those who want to take advantage of the positive outlook of the Greater Toronto housing market following Pharrell Williams' debut property development, a midtown two-tower project dubbed "Untitled." Those looking at commercial real estate listings will have already noted that prices rose almost 6% in October, and November appears to have kept up that trend.

RLP Maximum says, "Throughout the region, we have seen a fall in the number of new listings as owners decide to hang on to their properties a little longer. At the same time, we have seen prices rise and sales completing, which indicate a confident outlook following the recent slump. Local homes and condos have become great investments for new buyers and experienced property investors alike. It is an exciting time for property developers, and we wish Pharrell Williams the same kind of success we have enjoyed through helping more people find and create their own dream homes."

The brokerage helps locals and other parties find great investment opportunities across Ontario, and they are one of the few who deal with properties spanning all price points and conditions. They are always ready to share advice regarding the best areas to look for features their clients demand, as well as making them aware of local attributes that may influence their decisions. This personalized and highly knowledgeable service is unique to RLP Maximum.

The firm was recently featured on Digital Journal for helping owners understand how they may facilitate property sales by hiring a real estate agent. The article highlighted that hiring a real estate agent has become more of a necessity than a luxury over the past few years. This is due to the fact that the evolving market has made the real estate industry a more complicated field than it once was. Learn more here: Sell Your Home.

The brokerage has helped thousands of clients find their next perfect home or commercial property, buying or renting according to their own preferences. The properties they work with include vacant lots, commercial buildings, landed houses, condominiums, semi-detached and detached houses, luxury estates, and so on. Smart owners are looking to sell now so that they too can upgrade or downsize before their next ideal home goes out of reach of their budget. Utilising the features of smartphones, they can simply call RLP Maximum directly from their website to ask any urgent questions about maximising the opportunities they come across on the current market.

RLP Maximum has also provided many useful resources through their website, including the answers to many Frequently Asked Questions. They have thoughtfully provided insights for those looking to understand whether a home can depreciate in value and whether an older home is as valuable a purchase as a new home.

The firm continues, "We know that buying and selling homes are probably the largest financial transactions our clients will ever make. That is why we will do everything we can to support them through the process so that it goes as smoothly as possible. Our reputation has been built one customer at a time for more than 100 years. We help every Canadian find their dream home in their own dream community."

RLP Maximum was founded with a serious commitment to building a community and helping it thrive. All clients are invited to leave their honest feedback regarding the service they receive on Google or on the firm's official Facebook page.

Complete details of their current listings for purchase or rent can be found on their website. Property sellers, buyers, and investors may send an email or call RLP Maximum's service hotline to ask any question and inquire about their services as well. Those who are active on social media are invited to connect with them through their preferred platforms to stay up to date with their latest news and announcements.
