

Rockwell Trading Bootcamp Scheduled for Tampa Florida

December 09, 2019

December 09, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Rockwell Trading, based in Austin, Texas, has announced the schedules for a free Rockwell Trading Bootcamp to be held in Tampa, Florida. These will be held on December 13-14, 2019 and January 10-11, 2020. The free Rockwell Trading Bootcamp will last for four hours and is designed for people who have little to no experience in trading, traders who no longer want inconsistent returns from their trading, and investors who are not satisfied with their retirement accounts or are worried that their money will not last until their retirement is over.

Markus Heitkoetter, Founder of Rockwell Trading, says, "We're inviting people who are planning to start trading and those who are already trading but are not satisfied with their results to attend our free Bootcamp for December 13 or 14 and January 10 or 11. Please bring a notepad and pen so that you can take some notes because we will be providing a huge amount of money-making information."

Various topics will be discussed in the Rockwell Trading Bootcamp. These include how to find the best stock to trade; how to limit risk; when exactly to buy a stock; when to take profits; how to grow one's account; how to trade with confidence; and how to tell whether a stock is more likely to increase or decrease in value in 30 seconds or less.

And for those who are interested in the effectiveness of the Bootcamp training, they can check out the Rockwell Trading Review on YouTube. The review is from Kim Kenneth Bradford, who talks about how Markus was very direct and provided him with knowledge about the basics of trading and that he really enjoyed the Bootcamp. He is encouraging people to take advantage of the next Bootcamp training.

In another YouTube video, Markus Heitkoetter discusses how people can begin trading in just five steps. The first step is to decide on what to trade. There are various choices, including stocks, currencies, options, futures, ETFs, cryptocurrencies, penny stocks, and more. He recommends that beginners start trading stocks first because it is the easiest to begin. He cautions people to avoid those who promise to double, triple or quadruple their money in just a short time. He warns that the fastest way to lose all of their money is to attempt and double it fast.

The second step is to develop a trading strategy. Markus relates how the lack of a trading strategy caused him to lose money when he was just starting. It is vital to have a solid trading strategy that can provide the rules that can show exactly: what stock to trade; when to buy the stock; and when to sell the stock, either with a profit or a loss. As part of this trading strategy, he learned about trading indicators.

The third step is to practice on a demo account. Markus warns that starting to trade right away is a big mistake. This is because those who are just starting to trade will likely make some mistakes. By practicing on a demo account, the mistakes will just cost people some ?paper money.? Also, people can test their trading strategy with a demo account and see if it really works.

The fourth step is to open an account with a broker. The good news is that this is the easy part because as of October 2019, most brokers have decided not to charge any commissions. In the past, an important task for this step is to compare various brokers and commissions and support are important factors in making the choice. With most brokers no longer charging commissions, people can simply pick a reputable broker and open an account in just 10 minutes or less. Some of the recommended stock trading brokers are Charles Schwab, TD Ameritrade, Fidelity, eTrade, Robinwood, and Interactive Brokers.

And the fifth and last step is to begin small and grow big. It is important to start trading with small amounts first and then gradually grow big as one gets more confident.
