South Jersey property investment firm We Buy Houses South Jersey offers local homeowners a streamlined program that enables them to sell their homes quickly without having to list on the market with a real estate agent. Many homeowners who have had a lot of trouble during the sale of their homes have been searching for alternative solutions that provide a fast, easy path to liquidate their property without any further headaches or hassles. One of the main pain points for modern homeowners is having to deal with the drawn-out process of listing a home on the market with an agent because it can be a lengthy, complicated process full of infuriating circumstances.

We Buy Houses South Jersey is owned and operated by Tactical Investing Inc. a national real estate investment company that works in several different markets including Colorado, Florida, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey. The company started their house flipping operations back in 2014 when the CEO and owner Brian Rudderow had a falling out with one of his previous business partners on an online head shop project. Rudderow then became extremely motivated to begin his house flipping adventure and launched several websites on the investor carrot platform after doing some research online about the best real estate investor websites to use for this purpose.

Rudderow is a content marketing specialist who has written thousands of articles related to vaporizers, real estate, business, marketing, and other topics. Rudderow's company is currently working on a fix and flip project in Egg Harbor Township, NJ that is expected to be completed by March 2020. The company also has other projects lined up for when the Egg Harbor project is complete including another shore home in Cape May Court House, NJ and then another home in Dorchester, NJ. The company is currently using its own cash to fund each deal with the goal of building up a larger cash reserve once they complete each project one by one.
