December 30, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Aqua Magic Pool Services wants swimming pool owners in Plano, Texas and the surrounding areas to know they are always willing to stop by and provide them with their thorough 20-Point Pool Inspection Service. The company claims this service will help people's swimming pools run more efficiently and will also help to extend the working life of their pool equipment.

Company spokesperson, Randy Scott, had this to say about the importance of taking advantage of their pool inspection service, "Most people in this part of Texas use their pools 7 to 8 months out of the year. This can be even longer if someone chooses to heat their swimming pool. Swimming pool equipment is also being run almost continually during this time. That adds up to a lot of wear and tear on any backyard pool's equipment and filtration system. Our 20-Point swimming pool inspections are specifically designed to minimize wear and tear on pool equipment and to help ensure that a swimming pool is operating in a safe manner too."

Scott said their popular 20-point pool inspections focus on 4 main areas. The first is pool water chemistry. The spokesperson said this is a very important area of swimming pool maintenance because poor water chemistry impacts the useful life of pool equipment and can make it uncomfortable for those using a pool if they swim for a long time. He mentioned that most everyone that has used a swimming pool has had improperly balanced water sting their eyes at one time or another. The company does a complete water analysis during their 20-point inspections to make sure incidents like this never happen. They thoroughly check such important aspects of water chemistry such as sanitizer level, PH, Alkalinity, Calcium hardness, and the amount of stabilizer in the pool. For those pools that use salt chlorine generation, they will even check to make sure the salt level in the pool is at the proper level.

Another area that the pool techs at Aqua Magic Pool Services focus on during these important pool inspections is the equipment. They will do such things as make sure that skimmer baskets are emptied and not broken, and make sure all the wall and floor safety screens are in place and not clogged up with debris. Scott says their techs will also thoroughly clean the pump basket and strainer housing so it can continue to operate at maximum efficiency. The company will also thoroughly backwash the filtration system and check all the valves and other pool support equipment on the filtration system.

Scott says that after the above inspection tasks have been completed a service tech will then thoroughly clean the swimming pool. This includes vacuuming the pool, cleaning leaves and other debris off the pool water surface, and thoroughly brushing the walls and floor of the pool. He says if there is an attached spa on any swimming pool they inspect, the same cleaning procedures will be done on that spa too.

Lastly, Scott says their experienced techs will look at the entire swimming pool and report any potential problems that they find to the swimming pool owner. Scott went on to add that there is one other big advantage to getting a 20-point pool inspection from them. He says that many times they can detect small problems with a swimming pool during these inspections and correct them right away. Scott says many times by making these minor repairs during inspections, they help the customer prevent a problem that would have required a bigger and much more expensive repair solution in the future.

The spokesperson also wanted to mention that the company offers more swimming pool services than just 20-point pool inspections. This pool service Plano also offers a full line of expert equipment repair services and can remodel anyone's swimming pool too. Scott also mentioned that they do weekly pool maintenance services that are billed on a quarterly basis, this means a customer will end up getting 1-month of pool maintenance service for free. He added that all the pool services that the company provides are 100% customer satisfaction guaranteed.
