December 30, 2019 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

St. Thomas Towing is happy to announce that they are now absolutely ready to provide roadside assistance services to the growing number of stranded motorists that the wintertime and its dangerous road conditions bring about in Portland, OR. The local tow truck company specializes in long and short distance towing and the provision of car breakdown services. These premium services are delivered by a professional team of skilled technicians who are knowledgeable of every brand and model of vehicles.

St Thomas Towing spokesperson, Perry Hinton, says "The coming of winter season also means tough driving conditions due to snow and cold. To be stranded is troubling enough but mostly when there are far fewer roadside rescue companies to call upon for assistance over the busy holidays."

Hinton also explains that the number of road incidents substantially rises during the winter period, generally because of tough driving conditions. Their company needs to make preparations to keep pace with the anticipated surge of broken-down vehicles in the road and calls from stranded vehicles. The towing company wants to reassure its beloved customers that their professional technicians are always ready to respond to an emergency when a motorist is stranded on the road. "We will promptly respond to customer calls for emergency assistance any time they need. They can expect top-notch services with the feature of quality that distinguishes our brand," he added. A complete list of their services can be obtained in this link: <https://sites.google.com/site/stthomastowing/>.

The tow company provides full-service roadside assistance service in Portland, OR that focuses on their customer's needs as their ultimate priority. They provide resolute attention to every customer and stress-free, exceptional services. Their massive experience and knowledge allow them to assist their customers no matter what their individual needs are. They can provide regular assistance like battery jumpstarts, flat tire change, fuel delivery, car lockout help and winch out services. Their towing technicians are also knowledgeable of minor engine emergency repairs. "If your car is absolutely inoperable, we will tow it to a garage or auto shop. What is important is you're not left stranded and helpless on the road," says Hinton.

St Thomas Towing currently stands as one of the best towing and roadside assistance service providers in Portland, OR. As part of their preparations, the company has intensified its 24-7 campaign operations over the holidays by deploying extra emergency rescue teams on call. With this initiative, stranded customers in distant areas like Wilsonville, Latourell Blurock Landing, Rockcreek, Charbonneau, and Estacada, among others will be given 30-minute or faster response time when they call for help. "The cold temperature makes it risky for motorists to get stranded on the road. This is why we increased our workers so we can respond faster," explains Hinton. A complete directory of their service areas can be seen in this link: <http://gmbp.in/u/5e0a4bc507fdd>.

The tow company takes the most pride in their dependability. Their spokesperson asserts that they will come to a customer's rescue any time and any day. "Emergency happens at the least expected times. When that happens to you in Portland, OR, you can be sure that help will come. Just dial our hotline number at (503) 897-9723," he stresses.

St. Thomas Towing is rated one of the preeminent towing and roadside assistance companies in the Portland area, with an almost -perfect review rating from previous customers. One recent testimonial from a motorist from Happy Valley, states that the company is, "The most reliable emergency driver assistance provider. They are always there to help you when everybody else is asleep or busy with the holidays."

As for customer service, the company sets the standards for understanding and addressing customer needs. They go beyond the call of duty and help you out with anything. They also make sure that everything is done according to their high-quality standards. In short, they are a professional company with seasoned workers.
