Virginia Beach Company Launches Natural Dog Shampoo For Canine Skin Problems

August 14, 2015 -
Dancing Pet Natural Pet Products, a company based in Virginia Beach, Virginia, has launched a natural dog shampoo product that is designed to help dogs with sensitive skin. The shampoo also works on cats, treating the same skin issues effectively and safely.

Lois Gallo of Dancing Pet Natural Pet Products made these statements, "We don't use tea tree oil or other ingredients that are harmful to cats or dogs. Our shampoo is soap free, so it doesn't dry out skin or cause long term damage. There are no parabens, but it lathers well and does a great job."

The shampoo delivers a healthy, shiny coat without drying out the skin. The skin becomes moisturized and pH-balanced. Amazon customers rave about it, stating that it doesn't leave their pets with itchy, dry, or scaly skin, and that it is especially good for dogs with allergies.

"I've tried so many "healthy" shampoos for my dogs, and none of them worked for dry skin," says one Amazon customer. "One of my dogs has terribly dry skin, to the point that she scratches herself until she bleeds. Since we've been using this shampoo, she hasn't scratched once."

Oatmeal and other grains used typically to relieve dry skin can actually aggravate the skin to dogs and cats who may be allergic to these ingredients, and that can cause further dryness, scaly spots, and areas that could ultimately become infected because the pet may chew or scratch.

The shampoo is a grain-free alternative to oatmeal, and works to soothe and restore sensitive skin to a better state. It rinses away easily and will not deactivate topical flea treatments, so it helps to speed up healing of bites and minor skin irritations.
