Wedding Photography by IQphoto offers three different engagement and wedding photography styles: traditional, documentary, and editorial. According to the studio, traditional wedding photography is the timeless style that is most commonly utilized, wherein the focus is on capturing carefully posed photographs of key moments. While this style means that all the important images will be captured, the approach is very time-consuming and, as a result, the bride and groom may end up spending less time with their guests.

The second style, which is a more contemporary style, features a series of candid photos that cover the entire day. Wedding photojournalism can give the married couple a series of unique images that aim to ?tell the story? of their wedding day. Due to the candid nature of this style, however, the images can be unpredictable, and the couple may regret the absence of traditional, posed portraits in their album.

In the third style, which is known as the editorial style, wedding photographers place the subjects in certain settings to take advantage of good lighting and specific locations or backgrounds. Once the scene is set, the couple and their party are free to be themselves, and this results in a more spontaneous aesthetic. Unlike the documentary style, this takes advantage of the photographer?s artistic judgment rather than capturing a series of moments. The problem with this style is that it cannot be used to capture decisive moments.

Joseph Kohn, Principal photographer at Wedding Photography by IQphoto, says, ?If you are looking for an experienced and private wedding photographer, I can proudly say that IQphoto is your best choice in all of San Francisco. We are an award-winning destination wedding photography studio and, over the past 17 years, we have served hundreds of clients. In this day and age, where your lives are more often than not shared with all of your friends on social media, it is important that you have an excellent photographer who can capture your beautiful day in all its glory. Even if you don?t want to post pictures online, our pictures are the best way for you to preserve the memory of your wedding day for yourself.?

The stellar services provided by the San Francisco wedding photographer have earned the studio excellent reviews. On Yelp, they boast a perfect 5-Star rating from over 250 reviews. In her review, Ana B. says, ?My husband and I eloped in San Francisco on July 12th, and the stress of not meeting anyone in person was overwhelming at times. All communication was done through email, and I booked them based solely on what their website provides, but once at San Francisco City Hall, everything ran smoothly. Joseph was so easy to work with. He has a great eye and knows how to give you direction to capture the perfect shot. I am thoroughly impressed with the entire experience and the finished product is simply beautiful. My friends and family all raved about the quality of the pictures, which we surprisingly received in less than three weeks! Not to mention the slideshow preview they sent, a week after the wedding was a nice touch! I could not have asked for a better photographer and company.?

The company maintains its perfect ratings on Google as well, with a 5-Star rating from over 50 reviews. In a recent review, Jesse Gross praises the San Francisco wedding photographer, saying, "Joseph and Boris did a great job with our wedding! We planned our wedding ourselves and, while it was not the last minute, we certainly didn't give ourselves as much time as is often recommended. We thought that booking a great photographer might be a challenge but IQphoto, while popular, was very flexible and open to what we were looking for.?
