TLE Provides Financial Help For Emergencies

January 14, 2020 -
US based financial aid provider Title Loans Express (TLE) is taking measures to raise awareness among their community of the financial options they have at their disposal in the midst of an emergency. The company has a wealth of experience offering aid to their customers in times of need.

Most people have no short savings or emergency accounts, according to the company, and this puts a lot of people in danger of being financially crippled in the event disaster strikes. According to Bankrate?s recent Financial Security Index, nearly 30% of all adults in the United States have little to no emergency savings. A further 25% have a rainy day fund but not enough to survive for three months, should their main sources of income be cut off. According to experts, saving is incredibly important but not enough Americans are doing it.

The savings crisis is a result of multiple factors. The general cost of living has gone up. Paying for a house, buying regular household items and paying off debts have become much more expensive over the years. This makes it so that, at the end of the month, one is barely able to pay for everything they need to pay for, and what little they put in their savings is eroded away by the long list of expenses everyone now has to contend with.

While it is highly recommended that one keep some amount of money for a rainy day, this is not always possible, and many Americans find themselves stuck when an emergency occurs. Title Loans Express has been offering their services to people all over the US for years. The company understands how hard it can be to make ends meet in the current economic climate and as well as how hard it can be to find financial aid with most banks refusing to help those with bad credit. As they say, ?Gone are the days when people would use their bank or local credit union for emergency funding.?

Today, there are multiple ways of getting one?s hands on cash in an emergency, and this includes companies like TLE. They offer financial aid using their client?s vehicle titles as collateral. This eliminates the need for good credit, simplifies the process of determining who qualifies to receive financial aid (and how much they can receive) and provides a much needed source of funds for those in need. To learn more about the company?s services, read their ultimate guide to pink slips.

With Title Loans Express, one can qualify with very poor credit or no credit at all. The company is less concerned about their clients? credit and more with the value of their vehicles. It is easy to apply with TLE, and one can be sure the company will have a response ready within a day or a few hours of the application being sent. They believe that no one should be forced into contracts that they do not understand, so they make sure to inform every client of what exactly they are getting into when they apply for financial aid through the company?s channels.

If one?s financial emergency involves the loss of a job, they can still apply for aid with Title Loans Express. One can apply for financial aid even if they do not have a job, provided they have some other form of financial income. It does not necessarily have to come from employment, but the income must be present and must be enough to pay back the amount given. As long as one has a consistent source of income that equals at least $1200 per month, they can qualify for financial aid from TLE. Examples of alternative income that TLE accepts include social security and disability.

A number of the company?s clients have left great reviews of TLE online, thanking the company for helping them make ends meet. The company has a number of car pink slip locations, and clients from every one of their locations have left rave reviews. One such review, which can be found on Google Maps, says, ?My radiator was having issues out here, and I simply did not have the 800 dollars to repair it. I drive a fairly new car, so even the non-drivable value was enough to get a few thousand to run a full repair job, including breaks, oil, and tires etc. My car feels like new, I should have done this a long time ago.?

Another client on Google Maps says, ?This company?s service is really awesome. I was beyond satisfied with the customer service I received from Sandy and the staff of Title Loans Express. They have a sense of urgency and they?re going to make you comfortable. I highly recommend this company!?
