Alpha Therapeutics LLC, a leading private label CBD Oil Manufacturer headquartered in Phoenix, Arizona, has announced that they can offer economy of scale manufacturing to those who want to lead the burgeoning CBD product market in the cosmetics and beauty industry. More products than ever before are being manufactured, including CBD salves and transdermal (topical) balms, CBD tinctures, CBD lotions and cosmetics. Those looking for CBD cosmetic manufacturers can rely on the company's assistance to help identify the right mix of ingredients for their specific products.

Geoff Dada, CEO of Alpha Therapeutics, states, "Our mission is to lead the industry and bring the highest quality CBD-based products to market. Our organic, fair trade raw materials are triplicate-tested to ensure exceptional product quality. Along with our innovative CBD products, we help educate physicians and other healthcare providers of the potential benefits CBD may give their patients. Our verifiable federally legal, THC-free products are the ones you should be using to create your own CBD beauty product lines. We believe that there will be exponential growth and, therefore, the advantage will be with those who establish a reputable brand quickly. We can offer the manufacturing facility and base products you need to swiftly leapfrog your competitors."

Their manufacturing facilities ensure that the customer formulation process includes quality assurance, true labeling, consultant's advice, research and development, potency guarantee, rapid development and creative design that any client would require. For any business entering the CBD product market, it is essential that their manufacturer maintain the same high standards throughout the manufacturing facility. Alpha Therapeutics provide certified laboratories, rigorous inspection, testing and significant oversight of the plants' growth standards.

The company also provides wholesale CBD products for physicians, providing the peace of mind to healthcare practitioners and their patients who want to ensure that they are only using Industrial Hemp rather than using CBD derived from marijuana. Digital Journal recently featured Alpha Therapeutics in an article that highlighted their wholesale CBD products for physicians and athletes. In it, Dada states, "We're very excited to provide our pharmaceutical cannabidiol products to physicians and other healthcare providers. These products are for pain mitigation and pain management, and they can help athletes and other types of patients. These products have been ascertained to contain only cannabidiol and not tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), which is the psychoactive component of marijuana."

Those using the company's products relate their satisfaction through online reviews, which can be found on Google, Facebook and other review sites. For example, one such 5-Star review says, "Fantastic product with excellent customer service! I have been using the Alpha System 1000 CBD full spectrum oil for several months. It has helped me a lot! I suffer chronic spine pain, migraines and neuropathy throughout my body and anxiety. Since starting this oil, I immediately noticed an improvement with my anxiety, followed by noticeable relief of many of my pains. It helps a lot, and I highly recommend this yummy tasting oil for whatever ails you. Geoff is such a great person to interact with—he makes sure I get my orders on time! Thank you, Alpha Therapeutics!"

Healthcare practitioners have also been prescribing CBD to help treat many complications linked to epilepsy, such as neurodegeneration, neuronal injury and psychiatric diseases. There are further studies underway to determine the effect of CBD on cancer, anxiety disorders, Type-1 diabetes, acne and Alzheimer's disease. The exploration of medical benefits is certain to continue as time goes on.

As a private label CBD manufacturer, Alpha Therapeutics offers their clients the assistance they may require to identify the right mix of ingredients for their products. They can adjust product sizes, reorganize labels and fulfil testing requirements without any risk of sacrificing the high manufacturing standards they hold for custom CBD products.

Those who wish to partner with Alpha Therapeutics to manufacture their products are urged to make contact with Geoff Dada directly to get started. Physicians and healthcare providers can order products directly or speak with the company's customer service team regarding any specific needs and queries as well. The company invites all interested parties to connect with them on their preferred social media platform to stay abreast of new updates and announcements.
