January 23, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Santa Clara, Ca.- Many are not aware of the many technological advances that businesses use to give better products and services to their customers. Several different programs are accessible and are currently arising to make companies and businesses more effective and efficient to provide their daily services. Alpine Awards has adopted a new addition to their technology for the company, a new program for printing. This new program is known as the Direct Color System Printing method. These methods will create a new reason for people to visit the sports trophies store in Santa Clara, CA.

The Direct Color System Printing methods can make the store more efficient and provide higher quality work Alpine Awards. This program can truly make more vibrant and full color printing on almost any surface with the help of UV light adhesion.

According to Alpine Awards, the new system includes acrylic awards and plaques, cell phone and tablet cases, bottles and cylindrical printing, golf balls, Braille ADA compliant signage, sign printing, 3D texture and wood printing, photo ID, industrial labeling and serial plate printing.?

These items can make for more advanced technology than most other awards stores and can bring more business to the store because of the technological advances they promote.

Alpine Awards provides affordable and quality services for trophies, plaques, awards and engraving as well as promotional items. Using the new technology, Alpine Awards can carry more personalized items such as phone cases that are able to be purchased and have the person's name on it or their company logo. The materials are high quality and the printing is phenomenal. This new printing technique is the next best promotion for Alpine Awards, an awards store in Santa Clara, CA.
