January 23, 2020 -
Tucker, GA based Rose Dental is reinvesting in their commitment to maintain a completely Mercury-free dental practice. As the clinic strongly believes in providing conscientious and industry-leading care to their patients, they conclude that this is only possible if the opportunities for contact with toxic substances are eliminated altogether.

According to Rose Dental, the practice has upheld this refusal to allow Mercury in any of the products they offer for quite some time already. This year, they are recommitting themselves to this goal purely because they have noticed the improvement it has had on their services and in their patients? results. The clinic asserts that patients always have the right to know and choose what goes into their bodies, and this extends to the dental treatments they receive. As such, Rose Dental makes it their mission to provide non-toxic options that use biologically-friendly materials to their discerning patients.

They state, ?We strive to provide our patients with exceptional dental care using the highest quality, biologically-friendly materials so you can keep your smile healthy and beautiful for a lifetime. Here, we?re improving lives through holistic, biocompatible dentistry, one person at a time! We understand you have unique dental goals and needs as well as personal concerns. For your first consultation, our experienced dentists will talk in-depth with you about this in addition to any emerging dental problems. We can also show you how to keep problems from arising in the first place.?

Rose Dental?s day-to-day operations are presided over by Dr. Zina Aaron and her team of professional dental care providers. A holistic dentist with a wealth of experience and expertise in the field, Dr. Aaron strives to form a bond with each of her patients, working alongside them to determine their goals in addition to their ailments. This approach, the dentist says, gives patients more opportunities to relax during their visit, in turn allowing her to get to the bottom of any underlying issues with greater efficiency. The more comfortable a patient is, the easier it will be for them to undergo the procedures they require.

To this end, Rose Dental sought to get themselves a Safe Mercury Amalgam Removal Technique (SMART) certification from The International Academy of Oral Medicine and Toxicology (IAOMT). According to the latter?s website, ?The IAOMT promotes mercury-free, mercury-safe, and biological/biocompatible dentistry through research, development, education, and practice. Because of our objectives and knowledge base, the IAOMT is very concerned about exposure to mercury when amalgam fillings are removed. The process of drilling out amalgam fillings liberates quantities of mercury vapor and fine particulates that can be inhaled and absorbed through the lungs, and this is potentially harmful to patients, dentists, dental workers and their fetuses (In fact, the IAOMT does not recommend that pregnant women have their amalgams removed).? The SMART certification acknowledges that practices like Rose Dental are capable of removing pre-existing amalgam fillings with the least possible Mercury risk to a patient as well as the dental professionals involved with their procedure. Dr. Aaron and her team are likewise capable of executing every safety measure necessary to ensure smooth and successful amalgam removal. Many patients will also be pleased to note that Rose Dental?s premises are hypoallergenic?another facet in the strategies they employ to give their patients the benefit of a calm, soothing environment.

This attention to detail is reflected in the reviews that the practice receives online. Through the Google platform, Kimmi Jae says, ?This was by far the best dental experience I have ever had. The moment I walked in, I felt welcome. I was a first-time patient, so they gave me a tour and explained they were a holistic dental company. I was in shock. Very professional and friendly. Explained everything and did not impose any services on me that I didn?t want. Actually looking forward to my 6-month check in!?

Patients may reach out to the clinic?s representatives at any time to follow up on any further inquiries or schedule their next appointment. Interested parties may contact Dr. Zina Aaron for further details as well, and the practice welcomes all who wish to connect with them through their preferred social media platforms.
