Those at The Mortgage Bureau in Norwich say they are proud to be part of a city that is steeped in history and tradition. This city is located 100 miles Northeast of London and over 200,000 people call it home. It sits on the shores of the River Wensum in East Anglia. Norwich has survived despite a massive invasion from the Danes in 1004 and one of the fiercest aerial bombardments by the Germans in WWII. Businesses such as The Mortgage Bureau have helped Norwich?s transformation from Europe?s weaving capital in the 1300s into one of England?s most bustling cities. It takes many businesses to make this modern city a happy and convenient place to live in and those at The Mortgage Bureau in Norwich say they enjoy being a part of that.

Company spokesperson, Andrew Masterson, talked more about the company?s Norwich location by saying, ?Our Norwich facility is one of our eight branches that can be found throughout England. We are located in Stannard Place, St Crispins Road, which is just outside of the main business district. It?s a great area to be a part of because it?s not so congested and is close to many nearby carparks. We are also just a short walk from Norwich?s old medieval marketplace which is bustling with customers shopping for unusual wares every weekday. The area still has many buildings that have not changed much over the years, old cobbled lanes, and small alleyways. These buildings are home to many traditional pubs and eateries and some popular antique and curio shops. It?s a very peaceful and pleasant area to work in and it offers some nice options for our customers after they have conducted their business with us.?

Masterson went on to say that their location is not only picturesque but it also allows people looking for mortgages in Norwich to have a convenient location to do that in. He says their location is very easy to get to from such surrounding areas as Rockland St. Mary, Brooke, Horsham St Faith, Old Buckenham, Kenninghall, and South Walsham. The area features many mass transit options such as buses and trains too. There is even a modern park-n-ride system setup to access the city and there are also some great options for cyclists.

Andrew Masterson who was recently interviewed by ITV about remortgaging, went on to say that the main reason that customers come to see them these days is for their remortgage services. A remortgage is the process of paying off one mortgage with the proceeds from a new mortgage using the same property as security. Masterson says there are many reasons for people to want a new mortgage but the main one is to lower their monthly payments to free up some of their income for other things. He says this is very possible with today?s lower interest rates. Masterson also mentioned that other reasons people come to them to remortgage their homes include paying off a mortgage earlier, to raise capital for an investment or to consolidate other more expensive short-term debts such as credit card debt. The spokesperson also pointed out that they are proud to be staffed by some of the most experienced remortgage professionals in the area.

Masterson says they also offer other services besides just home remortgaging. That includes mortgages for first time home buyers. He says that they will help first time home buyers better understand the different mortgage options that are available to them and answer any questions they have as they go through the exciting process of arranging finances for their first home. The Mortgage Bureau in Norwich also does buy-to-let mortgages. These are the special mortgages that are needed by those that buy a home or property solely for the purpose of letting it out to tenants.

For those looking for a way to remortgage in Norwich, Masterson says the company is always happy to answer inquiries by phone, email or through the quick response form that can be filled out on the company?s home page. They are open every weekday until 5:30 and they can schedule an appointment for someone to add to the convenience of their services. Masterson also pointed out that their website is full of many blogs on mortgage and refinancing subjects and it also features detailed directions on how to best get to their Norwich location.
