January 28, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Jamestown, N.Y. ? The proposed 2020 shipping rate changes for The United States Postal Service have been released. These changes were set to go into effect on January 26, 2020. Following the major structural changes in 2019, some of the rate increases will be much lower than previous years. A local shipping store in Jamestown, NY, JRSC Express, is here to ensure that customers are informed of these upcoming changes.

Priority Mail and First-Class Package are two of the most popular shipping services for the USPS. While each of these services will be experiencing an overall increase in 2020, the percent change is much less than that of previous years. Priority Mail offers many different features, but the standard cost is determined by weight and destination of the package being sent. The destination is broken down into 9 Zones, with Zone 9 being the most expensive. Overall, Priority Mail rates are set to increase by 3.0 percent compared to the 2019 average increase of 6.2 percent.

Up until the major changes to the USPS shipping rates in 2019, First-Class Package rates were based off weight only. However, the pricing structure now mirrors that of Priority Mail with weight and Zone both playing into the price. Because of this restructuring, 2019's rate increase reached a hefty 11.9 percent. Thankfully, the increase for 2020 is much less, coming in at an average of 2.2 percent.
