Amber Cyman, the lead agent at Amber Cyman Real Estate, is happy to share her team?s motivations for building a brand new website. She says, ?We are thrilled to have a website that is representative of our personality and what we want the home buying experience to be like. In everything we do, we attempt to be fun, creative and vibrant in order to make the home buying?or selling?a process much less of a chore than it otherwise feels like for our clients. We take a great deal of pleasure in our work, so there?s no reason not to give our clients the benefit of that perspective and attitude as well.?

Cyman additionally expresses a deep sense of gratitude to the marketing and design agency that helped them come up with a brand image that represented herself, her team and their commitment to their work. She says, ?We feel like MasterMind really nailed it for us when it came to the logo and the design of the website. We know we are going to be able to reach more people with this website than we could previously. More importantly, they are going to have a much easier time reaching us.? Given that locating a dependable and knowledgeable real estate agent can itself be a hassle for many homeowners, or prospective homeowners, this ease of access will give many local residents a direct connection to a leading realtor in Traverse City.

The website also serves the purpose of expanding Cyman?s core philosophy: to place clients first at every opportunity. As echoed on the website, she and her team have committed themselves to maintain constant communication with their clients in order to ensure they are always up to speed regarding the purchase or sale of any given property. In summary, Cyman states that her mission is to give her clients an amazing experience no matter what their goals are. If this is not achieved, she does not believe her job is complete.

?We help people who are looking to buy or sell a home to do so quickly and for top dollar. We have a large network of personal contacts as well as relationships with other real estate agents in Northern Michigan. So, when we list a property for sale, we are able to contact those people and let them know about the newly listed property that might suit their client?s needs. We also operate several expansive Facebook Groups in Northern Michigan, with tens of thousands of members. This reach is something that no other real estate professionals in Northern Michigan can match. We work very hard at personal networking within the community as well as excelling at digital marketing?this allows us to give our clients the competitive advantage when it comes to listing a home for sale on the MLS, or Multiple Listing Service.?

Their clients appear to agree with this assessment. On the Google platform, for instance, the agency boasts a full 5-Star rating. In a recent review left on the same platform, Mike Nemec says, ?Amber is amazing! She helped me buy my first home. Even though I live almost an hour away, she took the time to come and show me homes after I got out of work. When we found the one, everything fell into place. She helped more than I could have ever imagined, helped make sure everything was going to happen in a timely manner.?
