The Bronx, NY - Banville Law, a New York personal injury law firm opened a new office in the Bronx to better serve clients in the community.

"We are proud to now serve our Bronx clients from this new location. The office is staffed with experienced attorneys and we look forward to continuing our local involvement in the community," stated Laurence Banville, the managing attorney.

Banville Law helps those who were injured in car accidents, slip and fall accidents, accidents at work, construction accidents, bicycle accidents, pedestrian accidents and other auto accidents file lawsuits and obtain justice through compensation.

The New York-based law firm has many experienced attorneys who can also help those who need to file for workers' compensation, social security disability, and they are currently litigating several sexual assault and abuse claims, in addition to birth injury and medical malpractice claims.

"Access to justice is very important, as a result we offer free consultations, and we do not require our clients to pay a penny towards the litigation until we recover compensation for our client. It is very important that we enable those who cannot fight for themselves to obtain justice," Banville stated.

The Bronx law office was opened in December 2019 and serves clients from Mott Haven, West Bronx, Pelham Bay, East Bronx, Fordham, Throgs Neck, Morris Park, Hunts Point, Kingsbridge, and all throughout The Bronx.
