Arbor View Dental Group, a dental office in Roseville, California, wants people to know the pros and cons of dental veneers to help them make an informed decision when having their tooth fixed. Dental veneers are thin pieces of tooth-colored porcelain that are cemented to the front surface of the natural teeth as an easy way to resolve certain physical and aesthetic issues. The procedure can either be direct or indirect. The direct procedure involves putting a composite resin outside of the tooth through bonding. The indirect method usually requires two appointments. During the first appointment, the teeth are prepared, impressions are taken, and the teeth are provided with a temporary covering. The second appointment is after two to three weeks. At this point in time, the veneers that are made from porcelain or pressed ceramic are ready and they are bonded to the teeth. A discussion of the pros and cons of dental veneers can be found at <https://www.colgate.com/en-us/oral-health/cosmetic-dentistry/veneers/dental-veneers-pros-and-cons-0515>.

Dr. Tony Chen, one of the dentists at Arbor View Dental Group, says, "Dr. Lieu Cao and I are both committed to delivering high-quality dental care while staying current with the latest technologies. We are both current members of the American Dental Association, the California Dental Association and the Sacramento District Dental Society. Our ultimate goal is to have a true family practice where the patients always feel welcomed and are treated like family. Dental veneers offer one of the easy ways to fix a tooth and make it look more aesthetically pleasing. However, you'll need to first know the pros and cons of veneers so that you can make the right decision.

Dental veneers offer a number of pros. First of all, they can easily fix a person's smile. When a dental veneer is bonded to the surface of the tooth, there is no longer cause to worry about yellow or stained teeth. Second, veneers can be attached to the front surface of the teeth so that they can be used to camouflage minor orthodontic issues like gapped or crooked teeth. Third, veneers can be used to replace damaged tooth enamel.

On the other hand, there are a number of cons. First, veneers can be costly. However, the price will depend on the dentist and the number of teeth that need to be restored. Second, some people may experience increased tooth sensitivity. Third, the procedure is irreversible because the dentist has to change the structure of the natural teeth and remove some enamel to place them properly.

For those who are considering Arbor View Dental Group, they may be pleased to know they have received many highly positive reviews, having an overall rating of 5.0 on Google Maps. One example can be found at <https://www.google.com/maps/place/Arbor+View+Dental+Group/@38.7973063,-121.3163639,17z/data=!3m1!4b1!4m7!3m6!1s0x809b217529b3a8c5:0x3f260e4b7eef1482!8m2!3d38.797383!4d-121.315076!9m1!1b1>. In the review, Samantha S. gave them a five-star rating and said, "I have been going to Arbor View Dental since I moved back to Roseville over five years ago, and I will never go elsewhere. They consistently provide excellent customer service. They are all very nice, always remember me by name, remember what I do for work, and check in about how I'm doing. They are also never running late and complete their work quickly. And the best part for me is that I get to watch a movie while they do their work. It makes the time go by fast. Highly recommend this place."

Both Dr. Tony Chen and Dr. Lieu Cao obtained their DDS from SUNY Buffalo Dental School in New York. Immediately after graduating from dental school, they both moved back to Roseville, California, to establish a family and their own dental practice together. That was the beginning of Arbor View Dental Group, a state-of-the-art dental practice that serves patients, from all age groups, for all of their dental needs.
