February 18, 2020 -

Lusso Gear is proud to announce the latest additions to its innovative and user-friendly range of automobile accessories. Their heavy-duty kick mats have been designed to protect the backs of car seats from children or pets who cannot keep their feet still. The kick mats are available in three and four-pocket versions. There are several colors to choose from and there will be a color of kick mat that will suit nearly every car interior.

Proving to be an instant success upon release, they come in two varieties: one with three storage pockets (<https://www.lussogear.com/products/3-pocket-car-kick-mat>) and one with four (<https://www.lussogear.com/products/4-pocket-kick-mat>). The pockets on the 3-pocket version each measure approximately 5 3/4" tall by 6" when flat. Many reviewers said that they found the pockets held more than they expected.

One reviewer who gave the mats five stars wrote, "As grandparents, we occasionally transport grandchildren from place to place as all of our children are married and live in our general area. If you do this, you know that they will often decide to use the back of the front seats as a kicking pad. Our seats are a light color. I found this company that sold a similar protector at just over $15 for two protectors. I ordered expecting possibly to be a little disappointed in overall quality but considering occasional use felt it was prudent to save the money. When they arrived, I was blown away with my impression of quality, utility, and ease of use. I highly recommend this product and company. They are engaged with the buyer and responsive."

In addition to the protection they give to the car's upholstery, these mats also help keep cars more organized. There is a place for toys, books, etc. and all the things that keep kids and other riders occupied. From baby bottles to coloring books, all manner of things can be kept handy in those pockets for the family.

The mats also come in a 4-pocket variety. The four-pocket type also comes in a number of colors: black, camel, red, maroon, and grey. The pockets are large enough to hold 8.5" by 11" coloring books. As with the other products in Lusso's line, the materials are eco-friendly and, in this case, they are made with waterproof, 600 denier Oxford material to thoroughly protect the upholstery. This is the same type of material that is often used to make luggage.

One reviewer, Ashlee F, wrote "It was as described. It's a great way to keep my kids organized in the back seat + keeps my seats clean! I'm pleased with my purchase." Others wrote that they saw the covers as looking very nice once they were installed in addition to being very practical.

Since its inception in 2016, Lusso Gear's mission statement has been to provide "high-quality products at affordable prices," for parents around the world. The company recognizes the many problems faced by parents when traveling with young children and its range of innovative car travel products is designed to help make a journey easier and more comfortable for both.

Alan, a company spokesman said, "We have been insistent on excellent quality materials and careful design from the very beginning of the company's existence. We know that people also will purchase time and again from a company that cares about customer service and so we also prioritize customer service as well. It's proven to be a combination that works for all concerned."

The company stands behind the craftsmanship and quality of its items and if any buyer is unhappy with a purchase for any reason, it may be returned for an exchange or refund.
