Norcross, Georgia company Care Me has recently announced the launch of its newest product, which is an upgraded electric tool for removing calluses from the feet. The CM-202 is the same as the previous model, but with significant improvements. With regards to the new product, a company spokesperson said: "It is a better version of the same reliable product that we've already had available. We're sure customers are going to find the new CM-202 to have more than a few additional benefits."

Those benefits include a more powerful motor. The motor of the electric callus remover has received a serious upgrade. With this, the company has warned that if users attempt to stop the running roller of the CM-202 with their fingers, injury may occur.

The charging light of the CM-202 will become green once the battery is full. This function is missing in the previous model, where the light remains red whether or not the battery is fully charged. The newly upgraded CM-202 also offers two speeds, medium and fast to fit a number of different needs.

The new model offers two different varieties, which Care Me feels are more appealing, and sleeker designs than the original version. Model CM-202A is designed for users with larger hands, while the CM-202B is designed for smaller hands. Colors for the new product include purple and blue.

While the new model has yet to receive reviews on the Amazon marketplace, the original CM-201 model was very well received. One customer states that "This is well worth the money. I have very dry feet that were actually snagging on my sheets and socks. My heels had tough, dry skin. I couldn't wait to try this and was definitely not disappointed. After just twenty minutes, my feet were greatly improved."

Care Me feels that the newer version of the callous remover will receive even better reviews, given that it is an upgraded version, offering a multitude of benefits for those with tough callouses.

Care Me provides health and beauty supplies to customers around the globe. For more information about the company, or their upcoming product releases, consumers can visit them online at their official website.
