A local pest control company serving the Muncie, IN area is offering effective bed bug solutions for property owners throughout the Delaware County region. Bed bugs have become a more common pest in recent years as their appearances continue to rise substantially. Top Bed Bug Control Specialists helps both home owners and commercial businesses treat for unwanted bed bugs.

Bed bugs feed on human blood so many times people realize they have a problem once they start waking up with bites. However, other bugs can bite too so you want to rule out the possibility of fleas, spiders, or other pests. Inspecting your mattress, bedding and nearby furniture is the best way to determine if it's bed bugs biting you," the business owner said.

The majority of people are under the impression that bed bugs only infest beds; hence their name. However, according to the owner at Top Bed Bug Control Specialists, a bed bug infestation can start in the bed, but if left untreated they will multiply and start infesting nearby areas and rooms.

These tiny, apple-seed sized pests can hide easily in places that are hard to see. The smallest of cracks and crevices in your mattress, bed frame and bedding are often the first choice. Unfortunately, they can also hide behind outlet covers, wall décor, light fixtures and even wall trim.

When bed bugs are behind wall trim and wall outlets, that typically means there's a pretty serious infestation currently in the works. This often happens when the property owner is unsuccessful in their attempts to control the bugs via DIY means. Professional bed bug removal in Muncie, IN is advised if you want the best results, the team manager stated.

The owner also added that most people don't realize they're being bit because not everyone will have a reaction to a bed bug bite. Others will experience itching, redness and /or swelling. Bed bugs have a numbing agent in their saliva and this is how they're able to pierce the skin and feed on a person without the person noticing.

We always encourage residents to contact a local bed bug control expert in Muncie, IN right away if they have the slightest suspicion that these pests are in their home. The sooner you take action the better chance you have of eliminating the problem faster. If left untreated, they will multiply and become a serious problem which will also cost more to exterminate, the manager said.
