Locked-Out Locksmiths Provides Information On How To Maintain a Burglar Proof Residence

London, UK, AUG 13, 2015 ? In the Hillingdon section of London during 2014, nearly 2,500 burglaries were reported to the Metropolitan Police. In the Ealing area, there were 2,850. That's London's West End, but the East End fairs no better with the Greenwich area suffering 2,068 and Newham suffering 2,176. Break-ins, burglaries and even more serious robberies are happening round the city, round the clock. In order to help London residents, Lockedout LockSmiths (www.lockedout-locksmiths.co.uk) has just published a new blog post authored by Brendan Connolly entitled 'London Locksmiths Present Basic Lock Measures for Optimum Security'.

The article discusses prevention for residential security 'with sufficient precautionary measures and a functional security system.' Although it discusses prevention from a residential stand-point, business owners might find the advice in the article applicable to their security measures also.

Most of the time, as the article points out, burglary occurs because the burglar takes advantage of a situation. Almost like they can't help themselves once they discover an unlocked door or window. The article also details better ways to hide spare keys to avoid the most commonly used place and most frequently checked for due to its commonality. It's almost like giving a burglar a key to the home when it's left there.

The burglar proofing advice comes from Locked-Out Locksmiths, which specialises in domestic security.

?Locked out Locksmiths went above and beyond to assist after a recent burglary incident in Acton,? stated recent and satisfied customer Jeannette Bartholomew. ?From attending the site in the very early hours on a Sunday morning, to ensuring that the building was secured that same day, providing recommendations and pricing on security options, to then completing installation of security doors, roller shutters and window grills within a very fast timeframe. Professional, excellent communication with work completed to a high standard.?
