Centerville, Utah based Utah Disaster Specialists is reaching out to the wider community to share details about a recent job mold inspection they carried out in Salt Lake City. The company provides their services to homes that have damage caused by fires, flooding, mold and similar incidents in Utah.

In this case, a Salt Lake City homeowner contacted the company about a potential mold infection in their home. When Utah Disaster Specialists? expert team arrived at the the residence and carried out their inspection, they found that there was a severe case of mold growth around the windows of the home. In addition to the windows themselves and their immediate surroundings, the company also found a lot of mold growth in the walls below the windows. According to the team, the fact that the windows had not been installed properly or sealed during the initial construction of the house had resulted in many leaks occurring over the years, providing the humid and wet conditions required for mold growth.

Daryl Olsen, owner of Utah Disaster Specialists, says, ?Mold is very dangerous, and if you so much as suspect that you might have mold in your house?even if it?s just a momentary smell?you should take immediate action. Take our recent Salt Lake City job, for example, there was so much mold in that house that, if it had been ignored, there was the very real possibility of the occupants of the house becoming sick. Fortunately, they acted in time, and we could help them. A lot of people often underestimate how dangerous mold can be, so I really can?t stress this enough: you should always get your house inspected if you suspect that you have mold. If you know you have mold, you then need to hire mold removal specialists to take care of it before things get worse.?

As Utah Disaster Specialists points out, mold can be a very dangerous presence in homes. Mycotoxins present in mold spores have proven to have many severely negative effects on people. These effects include everything from nose and throat irritation, burning, itching or watering eyes, and headaches, to a lack of focus or concentration and, in very severe cases, even memory loss. Olsen says, ?Getting your house inspected for mold is just the first step. In this step, the mold removal experts will look for hidden water damage that would usually escape the notice of most homeowners. For example, a leak behind a wall is not going to show any visible signs unless you actually remove the wall. Here, at Utah Disaster Specialists, we have the experience and the tools needed to find that hidden mold on your property and then take care of it in a safe manner.?

The thorough and excellent services provided by Utah Disaster Specialists has helped them become a prominent and trustworthy disaster specialist company in Utah. In a recent 5-Star review shared on the Google platform, Sarah Penquite says, ?I called Utah Disaster Specialists when my basement apartment flooded and my landlord was out of the country and unavailable. Other companies were not willing to help me without my landlord's permission but Daryl went out on a limb and was willing to help me. Flooding is always a very stressful situation, and I was very appreciative that someone was able to help me. I highly recommend this company.?

In another 5-Star review, Marcos Marraquin praises the company?s services, saying, ?My son decided to fill the tub with water and left it running. Utah Disaster sent out Kurt and Andy to determine what steps to ensure no mold would grow. They began to remove the water and what was also affected by the water. I've never felt so taken care of during an emergency scenario like this. I highly recommend this group of men and their team to come and clean your place up. Thank you.?
