March 02, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Video One Productions is a professional video production Chicago company that has been providing video productions, video editing and other multimedia services for some time now. The company has recently announced that they will be providing Chicago video production in the line of pharma videos.

According to the website, Video One Productions is experienced and proficient in most aspects of the roles that video plays in getting your drug or gene therapy approved. We've leased over 100 GoPro cameras and related equipment to research sites throughout the US, Europe, and Asia. The cameras documented the progress of various subjects before, during, and after therapy. The video footage provided proof to the FDA and other regulatory agencies that their therapy worked, which greatly supported their efforts to get it approved. We lease a HIPAA compliant website to store the videos that are uploaded by the research teams. We also lease and manage user licenses so that specific researchers and others only have access to designated folders and have limited access.

When requested, we trim the footage, add titles, and upload the edited videos to the SFTP. Sometimes a compilation video is needed to document the progress of a subject.

?If the people operating the video equipment need onsite or remote video training, we can help. We've traveled to many sites throughout the world to train researchers and others on how to use, store and maintain the video equipment, making sure that the correct perspectives were captured, and how to upload and organize their videos. This was also done remotely. We consult online, produce customized training videos, and provide ongoing quality control.?
