Budapest, Hungary based FRoffice Coworking is pleased to announce that they are translating the content and resources on their website to English. Due to popular demand, the company has seen huge growth in the number of international visitors who choose to use their coworking space, meeting rooms, coaching rooms and workshop rooms every day of the week. Thanks to the active social environment, casual and friendly atmosphere, easy parking and onsite facilities, they are the most ideal office for those who require flexible contract office space.

A representative for FRoffice Coworking states, ?Of course, we are always available by phone to cater for specific requirements and to explain our wide range of office rental schemes, which are available for virtually any time period, from five hours to one year. We also rent out coaching, meeting and therapy rooms on a fee-per-hour basis that allows many professionals to meet their clients here. Many have said they want to see what it looks like before they come in, so we have pulled together images from across the various rooms as well as the common spaces in order to give them a feel for our environments. We have taken onboard your requests to host our content in English, but do bear with us as we translate the entire site. In the meantime, we are always delighted to speak to anyone who has any questions in the language they prefer, including English.?

FRoffice Coworking was recently featured in the press after they announced that they would be providing coworking space for freelancers and micro-businesses. The news was picked up by dozens of online news sites, including Daily Nomad, Oriental News Today and many others, which has created even more demand from those who want to work from Budapest. In their announcement, the company spokesperson stated, ?Our coworking office spaces are not just comfortable and modern workplaces. Working together and having a sense of belonging gives every business an extra experience that greatly contributes to creativity, which in turn supports a profitable business and makes it easier to overcome problems. Here, both freelancers and micro-businesses find what they are looking for in an ideal workplace.?

The announcement also highlighted many of the options available to those who are looking for practical office space with everything included. Housed in a trendy, historic building, FRoffice offers modern facilities with comfortable, casual common areas. In addition, they provide anything a budding entrepreneur needs, from flipcharts to large-screen TVs, fast business Wi-Fi connections, and tea and coffee.

Clients who have used the facility have left their own feedback online, giving their honest appraisal of their experience. For instance, one top-rated review on Google says, ?Wow! I like this place. It is just a seven minute walk from the metro station. This place has such vibrant vibes and is a good place to do team building and official meetings. Much recommended if you are looking for a place for your office meetings in Budapest.?

Their spokesperson states, ?We want to thank everyone who has left their feedback online. We constantly strive to improve our offerings to make our clients? working days more productive. We know that many people don?t necessarily trust online translation programs, so we are working as fast as we can to translate all the information on our website into English to make it easier for our international clients. We want everyone to feel at home in our secure building and make the most of their time in Budapest.?

Some of the company?s reviews rate them among the best coworking offices in Budapest, and FRoffice is working hard to maintain and build upon this reputation.
