March 20, 2020 -
Towson, MD - Towson Roofing Pros announces that they have just published a new post on their website that talks about the importance of proper attic venting. With spring and summer fast approaching, those at the company want to make homeowners more aware of the benefits of not letting heat buildup in their attic space. They say that a properly vented attic will make any home more comfortable and energy-efficient. This is why they offer a wide variety of attic venting options for their customers to choose from.

A company spokesperson said this about attic venting, ?One area in a home that people do not usually seem too concerned with is their attic space. Maybe this is because homeowners do not typically use their attics for anything but additional storage space. Nonetheless, we want homeowner?s to be aware that their attics are a main contributor to higher energy bills because of the heat that builds up in them during the day. This has the effect of doing such things as making air conditioners run much longer to cool a home. Getting rid of this hot attic air before it builds up to extreme temperatures is the important role that attic ventilation plays. That?s why we encourage any of our customers that have no attic ventilation to highly consider having us install it for them.?

According to the company spokesperson, attic venting is not only about saving money on energy bills either. It also can help extend the life of any homeowner?s roof. Excess trapped attic heat acting on a roof from below can cause additional stress and strain on any roof that will take away from its useful life. He cautions that overly hot attics will also build up moisture in them. Moisture in an attic can also cause damage to any home's important roof structure and the surrounding structural wood in the attic. This moisture can also contribute to unhealthy mold and mildew growth in a home. He says that attic ventilation will greatly minimize heat and moisture buildup in any attic. These issue can result in the need for a new roof and that service can be read about here.

The company spokesperson says that they at Towson Roofing Pros offer three different types of attic cooling solutions. One of those attic heat minimizing solutions that they offer are rafter vents. Once installed, this passive type of attic venting does a good job of circulating and releasing the hot air in an attic so attic air stays cooler. He says that their company also can install attic fans for people which circulate and force the warm attic air out of an attic at a higher rate than rafter vents can. The company even gives homeowner?s the option of having solar powered attic fans installed that will help them save even more money on their energy bills. The company spokesperson mentioned that they also can insulate the attic area in a home to help cut down on heat transfer into that attic space.

Attic venting installation is not the only type of roofing services that this company offers either. According to their spokesperson, they also do large and small roof repairs, roof leak detection and resolution, and they can even put a completely new roof on someone?s home. He mentioned that their roofing company has been serving the roofing needs of those in Towson and Baltimore City for many years now. Their service area also includes such communities as Baltimore Highlands, Cockeysville, Hampton, Milford Mill, Pikesville, and Timonium.

The company spokesperson also went on to say that they are proud of the fact that their services are so highly rated by those that use them. Here is proof of that in a review from recent customer Emma H that says, ?When our home needed new roof installation, we received estimates from several local MD roofing contractors. Towson Roofing Pros gave us one quote for cheaper roofing and another for better roofing. Their price for the upgraded roofing was lower than the other prices we were quoted. We gave them the job and we are glad that we did. The new shadow pattern roof looks great.?
