August 25, 2015 -

Dr. Peter Lee, a renowned dentist in San Jose, California, reached a career milestone by broadening his services in the Willow Glen area, as announced through his website last month. Dr. Lee, whose expertise includes dental implants, has been in the dental industry for many years.

Dr. Lee's credentials are strong. He graduated from the University of California at San Francisco School of Dentistry. Since graduating, he practiced in both San Francisco and Marin Country. He finished his implant certification training from the Advanced Dental Implant Research & Education Center, called Hiossen AIC. His specialty in administering dental implants in San Jose is further strengthened by being a diplomat of the American Society of Implant & Reconstructive Dentistry (ASIRD).

Dental implants have always been a common remedy for patients requiring dental services. Dr. Lee's practice in Willow Glen, San Jose started small, but it eventually reached an acclaimed status through great feedback and through word-of-mouth from satisfied patients. Since dental implants can be complicated, they need a specialized expert to be able to do an accurate job, and this is where Dr. Peter Lee takes over. His experience in the dental industry has been cemented by years of service, as his reputation as a renowned dentist specializing in dental implants began to grow.

"Dr. Peter has always been known as a great, cheerful dentist among his colleagues," a dentist's assistant at Dr. Lee's practice observed. "His list of clients continue to grow and it's no wonder, because his expertise in providing dental implants services cannot be denied," the dentist's assistant said.

The dentist's practice has been getting great reviews from Yelp, as a result of Dr. Lee's impeccable services. One feedback comment read: "Friendly staff! Dr. Lee believes in using the latest dental practices and using the latest technologies to ensure that I'm getting only the best treatment. He gets the job done."

Dr. Lee's dental practice in Willow Glen is looking forward to continued administration of its services to its loyal patients. The dental office is planning to open its doors to several new locations in the Willow Glen area. More updates on the practice's new branches can be found on Dr. Lee's website.
