Banner Construction is one of the St. Louis, MO areas leading new and replacement siding contractors. As such, they know all the different types of siding available in the home improvement marketplace very well. That?s why they encourage people who are looking for new siding this spring to consider getting higher quality James Hardie Siding installed for them. The company says those that get this superior siding product installed get many more benefits from it than what more traditional vinyl siding offers.

Company spokesperson, Jessica Benbow, talked more about this exclusive siding product by saying, ?Once we saw for ourselves how well put together James Hardie Siding was, we instantly knew it was a type of siding that we really wanted to offer to our customers. That?s why we had the techs at Banner Construction undergo the necessary installation training that is required to become an Elite Preferred James Hardie Siding contractor in St. Louis, MO area. Judging by how well-received this product has been by those that we have installed it for, it was one of the better siding product decisions we have ever made as a company.?

She went on to say that the reason James Hardie siding is so highly rated is that it is much different than more traditional vinyl siding. This is because it?s made using a combination of portland cement, water, sand, and either wood pulp or fiber. Benbow mentioned that once these ingredients are mixed together it creates a durable material that is very easy to mold into the different siding shapes that are required to side an entire home or business. The water that?s added during the process acts as a catalyst that helps dissolve the wood fibers and activate the cement. She said this helps the mix harden into one of the strongest types of siding found in the home improvement marketplace.

Benbow says that one of the main reasons that people should consider upgrading their siding in the spring is because of the many benefits of James Hardie Siding. She says it is one of the absolute best-looking siding brands in the marketplace. It also comes in a wide selection of highly decorative colors and this helps customers achieve the exact home exterior look that they were hoping for. Benbow says that another advantage that James Hardie Siding offers is the fact that it can be molded to look like more extravagant types of home siding materials such as shake, vertical plank, brick, and stone. It does this at a fraction of the price these other siding materials cost. According to the company spokesperson, it?s fiber and cement composition also makes it one of the stronger types of siding found in the marketplace. She says it does not dent, warp or blemish as easily as vinyl or wood siding does when its placed under extreme conditions. Benbow added that fiber/cement composite siding such as James Hardie Siding also offers increased insulation value on any home it's applied on. Because of all of these unique characteristics of this siding product, it also tends to increase the value of any home that has it.

The company spokesperson also wanted to remind people that spring is a busy time for them at Banner Construction. That?s why she encourages those that are looking to get new siding installed by the company or take advantage of the many other services that they offer to start the scheduling and planning process as soon as possible. Benbow says that is one of the best ways for their customers to be able to schedule spring home improvement work at a time that best fits into their schedules.

In addition to their highly-rated siding installation services, Banner Construction is also one of the leading window replacement contractors in the St. Louis area.
