Milton Auto Parts Dealer Explains Growth Trends Projected Within the Automotive Recycling Industry

March 20, 2020

March 20, 2020 -

Milton, Fla. ? Overall, the automotive recycling industry is expected to witness rapid growth in the coming years. As processes and technologies used in the recycling industry improve, businesses can expect to see many new opportunities for recycling emerge. Butler's Auto Recycling, a Milton auto parts dealer, is working to stay on top of industry trends to better serve their customers.

As one of the most effectively recovered and recycled products, the automobile is recycled up to 80% of its weight. Auto recyclers first remove any reusable parts such as seats, wheels, hoods and doors. After any hazardous materials are recovered, such as mercury switches and fluids, the scrap metal is then broken down. Metal vehicle parts are the most sought-after materials for recycling. However, some companies have also begun looking into the recycling of plastics and how this could reduce the amount of waste from end of life vehicles.

The largest market for automotive recycling is the United States, followed by the Asia-Pacific region, Europe and Australia. In 2019, the United States recorded the highest volume of motorcycle recycling efforts with a total market share of 50%. The 2020 global auto recycling market is expected to be well above the 2018 total with a compound growth rate of 18%.
