March 23, 2020 -
Holliday Home Improvements, the first replacement window and door specialist in Hilton Head, South Carolina, is bringing several window types for home and property owners in the area.

While options for some are scarce, the Best Home Window Replacement in Bluffton, SC helps in providing the right type of frame for every residential and commercial property. The window company offers the four most common types of replacement windows: aluminum, wood, fiberglass, and vinyl. Each type of window has its specific usage, says Holliday Home Improvements.

Aluminum replacement windows have an excellent strength to weight ratio, allowing these windows to offer narrower frames and more glass viewing area, explains Holliday Home Improvements on a recent blog published on their website. However, aluminum is the least energy-efficient of the four types. When it comes to aesthetics, wood windows are the most pleasing to the eye. They are strong and offer better energy efficiency than aluminum, the Best Wood Exterior Window in Bluffton, SC adds.

Another popular option in the market now is a fiberglass replacement window. It offers strength and thermal efficiency, consistently achieving higher frame values than their aluminum or wood counterparts, according to Holliday Home Improvements. Fiberglass windows, on the other hand, have the bulkiest mainframes of all replacement windows. Their corners should also be mechanically fastened together, which sometimes could lead to air leakage issues.

For a maintenance-free option, there are also vinyl replacement windows. ?Vinyl windows are engineered to allow the most energy-efficient glass packages to be included. The fusion welding process not only makes the overall window stronger but makes a vinyl window the most airtight of all replacement windows,? the company states.

?We offer high quality, durable, beautiful, and energy-efficient premium vinyl windows, custom-built for you and your home. We design, install, guarantee, and service your windows, without a middleman. We do it all, with endless custom options,? says Holliday Home Improvements.

The Hilton Head-based window installation company is also connected with several top manufacturing companies in the area. The company goes ?factory direct? to provide Best Customized Windows in Bluffton, SC, at the most affordable price.
