Joshua Loera, owner of KBG Insurance & Financial, says, ?Regardless of whether you live in Spokane or any other part of Washington, homeowners insurance is one of the most important insurance policies you could ever own. If you?re not using an independent agent in Spokane like us, it can be hard, if not impossible to tell the difference between two homeowners insurance policies. If you?d like us to review your current policy and provide you with no obligation quotes, call our office or enter some basic information in the fields below to get started online. Either way, we make the process super simple.?

Homeowners insurance is a good idea whether a person owns or rents the home because this insurance can protect the policyholder financially in case of a loss due to theft, fire, vandalism, or other covered incidents. It may also be used as protection in the event that someone is injured while on the property and wins a lawsuit against the homeowner.

The homeowners insurance policies vary based on the losses that are covered, the type of residence, and the coverages that are selected. Homeowners can select which policy is best for them, whether it is a comprehensive policy that covers losses such as falling objects, smoke, hail, fire, theft, vandalism, or whether it only covers specified losses. KBG Insurance & Financial can provide advice on how to choose and get the most affordable policy based on the customer?s specifications. For those who would like to know more,

Common coverages in homeowners insurance policies have to do with the dwelling, other structures, personal property, loss of use, medical expense, family/personal liability, and scheduled personal property. The coverage on dwelling covers the actual structure or the main house. An important consideration here is that the cost of replacing the home can go up or down from time to time, depending on the cost of labor, raw materials, and the economics of supply and demand. KBG Insurance & Financial can assist a customer by running a replacement cost analysis for the home to determine how much it would really cost in case an event, like a fire, destroys it and it has to be rebuilt.

The coverage for the other structures like the fencing, sidewalks, detached buildings like a garage or shed, and driveways has to be separate. Usually, coverage for other structures is 10 percent of the limit for the actual dwelling but this can be increased if the homeowner wants it.

Coverage for personal property is for all of the personal belongings like furniture, clothing, appliances, electronics equipment, and more. Basically, personal property includes those things that are not part of the house structure.

Loss of use is supposed to cover living expenses if the homeowner is forced to lived somewhere else temporarily because the home is uninhabitable for the time being. Medical expense coverage is for guests who may get injured while in the home. Sometimes it may also cover people who are injured off of the property but it does not cover the medical care costs for the homeowner and other household members.
