

Plumbers in Orlando Warn About Plumbing Issues That Could Arise From COVID-19

Orlando, Fla ? The crippling effects of the COVID-19 virus has affected businesses all over the world. However, one occupation, in particular, is reaching out to warn individuals about their habits during this time. Plumbers in Orlando are highlighting the importance of proper drain care and are advising households to be mindful of the items they are flushing.

During this time when stores are struggling to keep toilet paper and other paper products in stock, many people are looking for alternatives to use. While many companies advertise their products as "flushable", this only means that the products will go through the toilet, so customers need to be careful with the items being used. Items such as baby wipes and hand wipes can wreak havoc on septic systems and should only be used as a last-resort option. Even in such cases, the Orlando emergency plumber suggests keeping a trash can handy to dispose of all items other than toilet paper.

In-home plumbing is now being used a great deal more as families are spending larger amounts of time in their homes for social distancing purposes. As pipes are experiencing more frequent usage, families will need to take more care with what is put down drains to ensure everything is flowing and flushing properly.

However, if any plumbing issues arise, Mr. Rooter Plumbing of Orlando is prepared to respond to any situation 24/7. The health and safety of customers is their top priority and Mr. Rooter Plumbing has special measures in place to help prevent the spread of COVID-19.
