Furry Friends Gear, based in Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania, has announced their launch of a new pet product review website. They review all kinds of products for dogs and cats to help pet lovers get the best products for their furry friends. Included in this new site is a blog site that offers articles about pets and choosing the best kinds of products for them, such as dog treats, litter boxes with odor control, cat backpacks, dog paw protection booties, practices for pets during the COVID-19 outbreak, and various styles of dog harnesses.

Brett Lewis from Furry Friends Gear says, ?We?re so excited to announce that we have a new website that offers various information for pet lovers. Aside from our various articles about our reviews of various products for dogs and cats, we have also included a blog that discusses helpful information for pet lovers, such as food and nutrition for pets, health and care for pets, pet carriers and travel, apparel for pets, collars and leashes, and more.?

The latest article on their blog site is focused on how to choose the best treats to use for the Furbo dog camera. The Furbo dog camera offers a solution for dog owners on how to address the problem of having to leave their pet behind when they?re out of the house, such as when they go to work. This dog camera, aside from its video monitoring and recording function, can also be set up to dispense treats with the mobile phone as remote. The article discusses some of the best treats that can be used for the Furbo,

Of course, reviews of dog products form a major component of this new website. The dog products reviews page is further subdivided into a number of categories. These include dog equipment reviews, dog carriers and travel product reviews, dog collars and leashes product reviews, dog apparel reviews, dog health care reviews, dog toy product reviews, dog food and nutrition product reviews, dog accessory product reviews, dog beds and furniture reviews, dog gates and pens reviews, and dog training and behavior product reviews.

For instance, Furry Friends Gear has compared two pet treat cameras: the Petcube and the Furbo dog camera. The Petcube can be easily controlled with a mobile phone through the Petcube Care app. Subscription to the app lets the user get filters, 30-second video clips, three days of video history, and smart alerts. The Petcube Play component is provided with a laser toy while the Petcube Bites is not just a camera but also a treat dispenser. Meanwhile, the Furbo has a bark alert that is done through notifications via its app on the smartphone. The Furbo has a privacy feature that automatically shuts off the camera and connects to the smartphone's Bluetooth when the owner arrives home and automatically turns on when the owner leaves home or gets out of Bluetooth range.

Also provided are reviews of product for cats. These include health and care products for cats, carriers and travel products for cats, beds and furniture for cats, and food and nutrition products for cats.

For cats, Furry Friends Gear in one of its articles has provided their top picks for litter boxes for odor control. Cat litter boxes are available in various forms, styles, and material. The cat litter box is important for pet owners who want to get rid of the stinky smell, which is the prime consideration when choosing a litter box. Pet owners may also want to get some odor-fighting accessories.

And for those who want to travel with their cats, Furry Friends Gear has also focused on what they consider to be the best cat backpacks. A cat backpack offers the advantage of helping to distribute the weight of the cat more evenly so that carrying one's pet cat would be much easier. Some of the factors to consider when choosing a cat backpack are storage, durability, comfort, ventilation, visibility, and security.

Those who are interested in reviews of dog and cat products can check out the Furry Friends Gear website, or contact them on the telephone or through email.
