Louisville, KY Marketing Agency Moves Into New Office

April 13, 2020

April 13, 2020 -
Louisville, KY based marketing agency One Thing Marketing would like to announce that they have moved into a new office. The agency hopes to provide more convenient service to their Louisville clients from their new location, and businesses in the area that are looking for a reliable, effective marketing solution are encouraged to get in touch with One Thing Marketing today.

?We are excited to announce that One Thing Marketing has moved into a new office space,? the agency says. ?With this new space, we will be better able to create customized online marketing solutions that are proven to attract new customers, generate more leads and provide the highest return on investment possible for your marketing efforts and dollars.?

One Thing Marketing started out with the aim of ending the frustration of small business owners who were tired of working with website design and online marketing companies that failed to deliver on the many promises they made. The agency is committed to providing dependable, effective marketing strategies and advice to help businesses increase their visibility and grow. The agency is run by people who understand how it feels to spend one?s marketing budget on a marketing campaign they believe to be worthwhile only to have it produce inadequate results. Each member of One Thing Marketing is personally familiar with the disappointment that is felt when a project underperforms due a third party?s actions, especially if the party in question is supposed to be an expert, and this is one of the reasons they continuously strive to help their clients avoid similar situations.

Many companies find themselves falling into a cycle of throwing money into different marketing strategies, such as print ads, direct mail and almost anything else imaginable, only to discover that nothing they do really works?and some marketing strategies even turn customers off. With the help of marketing professionals like those at One Thing Marketing, however, it is possible to create a powerful online presence that works to attract the attention of the business? target audience. Online visibility means one?s business is far more likely to be seen by more people, and those people are also more likely to choose to work with a company that has an attractive, well-designed website.

The marketing solutions offered by One Thing Marketing have been proven to attract new customers, generate more leads and provide the highest return on investment possible for one?s marketing efforts as well as the money they spend on trying to increase visibility. The marketing agency is run by professionals who are equipped not only with a great deal of knowledge and experience in the world of marketing but also a strong passion for creating effective campaigns. The agency?s website can be found at https://www.onethingmarketing.net/.

It is One Thing Marketing?s goal to be the trusted, dependable marketing resource that business owners can turn to for effective marketing solutions that help their businesses grow and succeed. Many of the agency?s clients have left excellent reviews talking about the experience of working with One Thing Marketing. One client says in their 5-Star Google review, ?One Thing Marketing is terrific!! In a time where there appears to be a ?marketing expert? everywhere, it?s hard to determine who is really qualified. One Thing Marketing is responsive and knowledgeable. I will trust them with all of my marketing needs going forward!?

Another client says, ?I am very happy with the website that One Thing Marketing created for my accounting business. I wanted a professional website that current and new customers could access to learn more about me and the services I provide. Dan and Brittany took the time to get to know what my business is about and to make sure that my website reflected that. They made sure I was included in the design process and have kept me updated with the progress the entire time. They also had a lot of great suggestions for the website content. I highly recommend One Thing Marketing. They have been great to work with!?
