August 25, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Canada Pardons has recently launched a new service aimed at helping people with a Canadian criminal record. Their service is designed to make the record completely disappear. They guarantee that they are able to do this for eligible people.

"We help people successfully apply for a pardon," says a representative from the company. "While there are other services out there that aim to do the same, we are the only ones who will never give up until the pardon is received. We are so sure of the fact that we can do this that we offer a full money back guarantee. We do whatever it takes to get it done."

The company has also released a range of information to help people who are looking at getting a pardon in Canada. As can be seen on canadapardons.org, it is revealed that it is actually not necessary to hire a professional in order to apply for a pardon. However, by working with a company like Canada Pardons, the chances of getting the pardon and for it to be received quickly, are much higher.

Other tips include a warning to not fall for dishonest companies preying on the vulnerability of people with a criminal record. In addition, they warn people that there are usually many pieces of paperwork to complete and to prepare themselves for additional fees. It is their honesty, dedication and hard work that have encouraged a number of people to leave positive reviews about the service.

"I can't believe my pardon was granted so quickly!" says Paul from Brampton, ON. "Everyone I spoke to said they paid their lawyers thousands of dollars and it took years to get their pardon. I got it in just a few months, and for a fraction of what they'd spent."

Receiving a pardon is a complicated legal procedure that is best sorted out by a professional service. By visiting canadapardons.org, people can check whether they are eligible for the service. The company also offers US entry waiver services and file destruction services. Further information and a contact form are available on their website.
