August 27, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

AV Design Consultants, based in Kitchener, Ontario, Canada, is happy to announce the addition of a range of audio visual services to its already impressive list of services. The company now has added various services specific to home users. In so doing, it is hoped that this will assist more people to have the best audio visual tools in their properties.

"We have long been known for our services and high quality equipment for business and corporate use," says a representative from AV Design Consultants. "We will continue to offer the same level of service, but are proud to announce that we have now added domestic and residential services to the original services."

Previously, the services offered by AV Design consultants were limited to commercial audio video, video conferencing and boardroom audio video systems, smart board and interactive presentation systems, window covering and lighting automation, digital signage, and camera systems. A substantial part of the range of new services are specific for residential settings. These services include custom home theater systems, multi room audio video, home automation, flat screen TV and audio system installation, residential computer networks, camera systems and pre-wire (both residential and commercial).

"AV Design Consultants can design and install your commercial audio/video system for your small scale or large scale project," adds the representative. "We feature systems for Shopping Centers, Restaurants, Bars and Commercial buildings that are easy to use and long-lasting."

By offering domestic and residential services, the business has greatly expanded its reach for various customers. The company is already known as one of the most respected in the Kitchener area, and it is likely that they will further improve their reputation through these new services. They recommend anyone who is looking for further information about what the company can do for them to visit the company website at avdesignconsultants.ca. The website also highlights the fact that the company offers around the clock customer support to anyone who has had a system installed through them. It also explains that the company is happy to work with any type of brand.
