April 01, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Air Conditioning Edmonton, a well-known and highly respected Edmonton business, is very pleased to announce that it is now serving Stony Plain and some surrounding areas. Having been in business for more than ten years, the company has decided to expand and to offer its air conditioning expertise to other areas besides Edmonton. Further details of the areas now covered can be found on the company website located here: <https://air-conditioning-edmonton.ca/stony-plain-air-conditioning/>.

Dwight Gropper, a spokesman for Air Conditioning Edmonton said, "We are really pleased to be able to serve the people in Stony Plain. These days, air conditioning is not a luxury. It is an absolute necessity for many people nowadays as they are experiencing hotter summers and colder winters. Everyone likes to be comfortable indoors of course but what people don't realize is that the general useful life of an air conditioning system is about 10 to 15 years if it is properly maintained.

Air conditioning is such an everyday experience that people do not consciously think about it and it gets taken for granted by almost everyone. It is simply a cold, hard fact that the majority of homeowners and business owners do not give their HVAC systems any thought until something goes wrong. By then, of course, the damage has already been done and the remedial work needed is usually expensive. Regular inspection, cleaning, and maintenance can help prevent such expense and the cost of cleaning and maintenance is almost always cheaper than repair.

Air Conditioning Edmonton also serves St Albert so home and business owners can feel free to request a consultation in that area. The company states that its goal is to create long-term relationships with its clients. Mr. Gropper said, "Air Conditioning Edmonton and our clients have the same goals: we both want to maintain their homes and their machinery to a high standard. We do everything that we can to make that happen, which means we work with integrity and honesty. Not only is your satisfaction 100% guaranteed for the work and sales that are performed, but we won't leave your premises unless you are smiling."

All technicians at Air Conditioning Edmonton are highly trained specialists. They can inspect, maintain, repair, or replace any part of an air conditioning system. Also, they're experts in their field and can advise both homeowners and business owners as to what is needed to keep the air conditioning running smoothly and efficiently.

Air Conditioning Edmonton is currently in the process of putting together and publishing a list of Alberta, air conditioner tips & tricks so that visitors to their blog can proactively take some steps for themselves to help minimize expensive and unforeseen repairs. In addition, it will help owners understand the need for regular maintenance. These include tips that will save any home or business owner money. For example, if units have their parts lubricated regularly, friction will be minimized and that can cause less wear and damage that would normally increase energy costs.

They also point out that thermostats need to be calibrated to verify proper operation and to make sure that the system is functional and accurate. The blower and the blower motor need to be examined and tested for performance because that too can lower energy costs.

The company offers a "One-hour Tune-Up," according to the website, and during this, several specific services will be performed. This includes testing refrigerant levels, washing the condenser coils, and making sure the contactor switch in the unit is functioning. They will also inspect the capacitors, which will completely stop the unit from working.

"The fact of the matter is that maintenance can make sure that a particular unit will last longer and that the home or business owner may not ever be stuck with emergency repairs," Mr. Gropper said.

More in-depth information about maintenance, repairs, or purchasing an air conditioning system can be found
