April 02, 2020

April 02, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

San Antonio, Texas based Carabin Shaw P.C. is delighted to announce the addition of attorney Sandra Laurel to their renowned team of personal injury lawyers.

"It is with great pleasure that we announce the addition of Sandra Laurel to Carabin Shaw's team of attorneys," says James Shaw, Carabin Shaw's Founder and Managing Partner. He states that this new development is the culmination of months of discussion where they determined that both Ms. Laurel's and Carabin Shaw's goals aligned perfectly and would benefit from each other's presence. Further information on the local office's areas of practice, along with their vision and mission, can be found here: <https://carabinshaw.com>.

Shaw continues, "Ms. Laurel brings a significant amount of experience to the Carabin Shaw team, elevating the quality of the legal services that we offer. The main beneficiaries of this addition to our team are our clients and the community, as they now have yet another reason to choose us to represent them. We are very excited to begin working together, representing the community and our clients in their times of need."

Sandra Laurel has been Board Certified in Personal Injury Law since 1995. Laurel earned her BBA in Finance at St. Mary's University. A native of Laredo, she received her Law Degree from the prestigious St. Mary's Law School. Laurel has always shown a remarkable interest in helping others, as she states that this is what sparked her interest in law. Further information on Laurel's qualifications as a Texas personal injury attorney is available here: <https://fordandlaurel.com>.

"The best part of my job is helping people," says Laurel. She puts this enthusiasm and commitment into each of the cases she works on, always placing her best foot forward to guarantee that her clients are represented well and looked after by someone who cares about their situation.

Laurel complements her extensive knowledge in personal injury law with basic medical knowledge, as she has stated on several occasions that learning about medicine is a passion of hers. If she were not a lawyer, she says, she would be helping others in the medical field. Laurel is also bilingual in Spanish, presenting new opportunities for local residents to be heard and properly represented by someone who truly understands their situation and needs. This also eliminates any obstacles that would otherwise be raised by a language barrier.

At Carabin Shaw, Laurel will concentrate her efforts on handling cases that involve civil litigation in personal injury. These include complex Medical Malpractice cases, serious 18-wheeler and automobile accidents, construction accident cases, breach of contract cases for partners in different businesses and class action cases regarding defective products as well as other areas.

"I have over a decade of experience in most of these areas of practice and can guarantee my clients that they will receive nothing but the best legal representation they could ask for," says Laurel. "All of these areas revolve around delicate cases that could potentially change a person's life forever. Without proper legal representation, the repercussions of their personal injury case could put them in a rough financial situation in both the short and mid-term. I aim to mitigate these consequences as much as possible and see that they receive the compensation that they are entitled to."

With the addition of Laurel to their firm, Carabin Shaw now possesses over 200 years of combined experience in personal injury law. The firm's attorneys have won over 36,000 personal injury and wrongful death cases over the course of their history in the field. Through their website, the firm states, "We are dedicated exclusively to advocating for the rights of individuals injured or wrongfully killed in accidents. We do not represent insurance companies or corporations. We stand up for victims against insurance companies, and we will take a case all the way to trial and beyond if an insurance company wrongfully refuses to honor or resolve your claim. We will not rest until you are rightfully compensated for your injuries and on your path to recovery."

Victims of personal injury, medical malpractice or any similar case may reach out to James Shaw for further details. Additionally, they may find more information regarding Carabin Shaw P.C.'s legal services through their website, which can be accessed here: <https://caraccidentattorneysa.com>.
