TacPack Highlighted By Guns.Com For Subscription Service

April 06, 2020

April 06, 2020 -
TacPack is a subscription-based service that supplies a unique box of gun gear each month to Pro 2A advocates and other gun enthusiasts. Their product was just recently highlighted in an article posted on the popular online magazine Guns.com. The article was written due to the increasing popularity of the TacPack boxes that get delivered right to their customers' doorstep every month.

A company spokesperson had this to say about the Guns.com mention and why they chose to create the TacPack monthly subscription service, ?We created TacPack because we wanted to provide people with a system of receiving quality and emerging products on a monthly basis so they can 'try new stuff'. As a company, we take pride in testing each product before it goes into the box and out the door! We search to find lifestyle brands that positively represent the community. Our boxes contain an assortment of tactical goods, survival goods, and EDC gear. We partner with some of the most exciting brands in the industry to give you a chance to try their products. Our staff could not be more pleased with how well received our tactical packs have been and the article about us in Guns.com was definitely the highlight of our month.?

The company spokesperson went on to describe their service by saying that its customers pay a flat monthly fee of $49.95 in exchange for their full box full of goodies each month. He says the contents of their packages are always worth at least $80-$100 and no two boxes are ever the same. The outfit sources products from popular tactical, survival, and EDC companies that they have negotiated favorable pricing with.

The Guns.com article featured a review on the TacPack box that February subscribers received. It went on to describe each item that was included in the subscription box. The article mentioned that the February TacPack featured five different items. Among them were three new products that were related to the AR-15 platform. They were a Armaspec Rhino Magwell Grip and Funnel, an Armaspec Oops Kit, and a TacFire Roll Pin Starter Punch Set. All three were deemed very useful products for AR-15 shooters by the person writing the review. Next up the article talked about some survival gear that was included in the box. It was what is called a RATS (Rapid Application Tourniquet System) tourniquet. This is a very popular and effective means to stop blood flow after massive trauma has been inflicted to someone?s body. Rounding out the February

TacPack product was a long-sleeved shirt featuring a custom TacPack logo that?s well-suited for a day on the range or any other casual event. The Guns.com reviewer seemed to be generally pleased with the contents of the February TacPack for the price that a subscriber would have paid for them. For those that would like to see the Guns.com review in its entirety, they can follow this link at https://www.guns.com/news/2019/02/28/tacpack-serves-up-gun-gear-each-month-with-subscription.

The company spokesperson went on to mention that their service is extremely easy to sign up for. He says it all starts by the customer filling out an information form and then paying for the first month?s fee. After that, they will receive the TacPack for the upcoming month. Those who are subscribed can expect their monthly TacPack product to arrive sometime around the middle of the month. The company spokesperson says that they pride themselves on offering a no-hassle subscription plan which requires no lengthy commitment and can be canceled at any time. He added that the subscription is automatically renewed each month until canceled so no more effort is required by the customer once that they sign up for the service. The customer's credit card will be charged on or around the 20th of each month.

As an added bonus each customer that signs up for the TacPack monthly subscription plan is automatically entered to win an AR-15 gun package estimated to be worth $1100. Those who want to no more about this company?s unique gun and survival-related packs can refer to their website at www.tacpack.com.
###
For more information about TacPack, contact the company here:TacPackvisibility@tacpack.com

TacPack

TacPack is a monthly subscription box that focuses on everyday carry, tactical, and survival gear.

Website: https://www.tacpack.com/

Email: visibility@tacpack.com