April 03, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

University Headquarters (HQ) ? a prominent online resource known for helping students navigate through the higher education process ? released its list of the Top 25 MBA Schools in the US.

The complete MBA list is available today on University Headquarters, where prospective students can access them for free. Additional information includes tuition costs, enrollment statistics, graduation rates, and diplomas awarded. The University Headquarters website also features resources to help students find financial aid, degree information, projected salary data, and other important career information.

Harvard University attained the #1 ranking among all other MBA programs. As the oldest highest education institution in the United States, this Ivy League research university was determined to have a lot to offer MBA students. The two-year, full-time residential program focuses on real-world practice and covers emerging markets, entertainment and media, retail and consumer products, technology, entrepreneurship, healthcare, and social enterprise. The Harvard Business School also offers joint degree programs to prepare individuals for complex leadership challenges that balance expertise with effective management skills.

University Headquarters Top 25 MBA Programs

This ranking list reports the top 25 colleges and universities offering MBA programs. Some of the top colleges and universities are: Harvard University, Columbia University in the City of New York, Dartmouth College, University of California ? Berkeley, University of Pennsylvania and Stanford University.

About the University Headquarters Top 25 MBA Schools List

For this ranking, University Headquarters only considered MBA schools and universities specializing in Master of Business Administration programs. Institutions without MBA degree programs were not assessed. Qualifying schools were also selected only if they offered high quality or very affordable education options, and had a wide variety of degree options available. Additionally, the colleges and universities had to be located throughout the United States.

The organization also based its assessments of college and university MBA programs on a proprietary rating system. Determining data types included, but were not limited to: retention rate, graduation rate, cost of education, average salary for graduates, acceptance rate, reviews and online programs offered.

While the University HQ Top 25 MBA College list highlights the best schools with graduate business programs, student success starts by finding the right academic fit for you. Students are encouraged to research all options thoroughly in order to find the college or university that suits their unique needs and preferences best. University Headquarters provides an abundance of information necessary for students to make the best possible higher education choices.
