April 20, 2020

Dartford, Kent - April 20, 2020 -

Dartford, UK based Simpsons International Removals Ltd is pleased to offer a cost-effective method to transport furniture and belongings from the UK to Spain before Brexit takes full effect at the end of the year. With experience that spans over 35 years, the company prides itself in providing professional international removal and shipping services throughout the UK, the majority of Europe as well as a number of popular destinations worldwide. Whether customers are returning citizens or moving overseas for business or lifestyle, the company has plenty of tailor-made services available to assist with international removal. Their services include sea freight and airfreight, for small luggage consignments, a partial household move, and even full household moves.

Meanwhile, the logistics company strongly advises British nationals looking to move to Spain from the UK to do so before the 31st December, the Brexit transition period. This is because, once the Brexit transition ends and the UK has fully left the European Union, more conditions will likely apply for transporting household goods between the two countries. To avoid such a predicament, the company is ready to provide for the necessary moving services to all British nationals who need it.

However, John Lee from Simpsons International Removals Ltd explains that, since the coronavirus pandemic has caused a temporary suspension of removals from the UK to Spain, there is likely to be an increased demand from people looking to move between September and December to meet the deadline. Lee therefore recommends that people register their interest early so they can be first to book their move when removals to Spain resume later in the year. To continue providing its services to its customers during these trying times, Lee states that they are currently offering home video surveys via an app so that they can quote customers without having to physically visit their home.

"Our dedicated load service offers the freedom of a specific date for the goods to be removed from your current premises and, subject to the confines of driving, the delivery date to your new home in Spain. You will have the peace of mind of seeing your goods loaded safely, and leave to travel directly to your new Spanish home, then allowing you to see the vehicle arrive to unload. If necessary, this service can also incorporate a period of storage, and as with all of our other services, you may elect to take a full or part packing service when you are moving house in Europe,? says Lee.

Simpsons International Removals is the perfect match for those who aim to move from the UK to Spain. Decades of experience in the industry have been spent doing removals not only from London, Birmingham, Manchester, and Liverpool to Spain, but from all parts of England. The company also has teams serving Wales to Spain as well as from all over Scotland to Spain too. The members of the company are highly experienced International Removal Consultants who are available to talk to customers throughout the moving process, and answer all their questions. Over the years, Simpsons has received a number of awards and accreditations for its excellence in the industry.

In a review with IMR, one customer gave the company a 5-star rating and said, "Excellent communication throughout the time of moving from my house/storage to the container. Staff are always courteous and their quotation was spot-on. They were not the cheapest, but when I saw all the awards that they?ve won, I decided on them. I can definitely recommend them to anyone thinking of moving stuff overseas."

Meanwhile, another customer in a glowing review on Removal Reviews UK said, "We received a competitive quote from Simpsons for packing and moving to our new local home. The two packers, worked hard on the day before the move and were very professional. On the move day, the team again worked to ensure we got in and that the furniture and boxes were in the right rooms. The excellent packing ensured that our fragile items were undamaged. I would recommend them."
