Steadfast Tree Care Spotsylvania has just posted an article on their website that outlines some steps that home and business owners can take to keep their trees healthy this summer. It's all part of the company's exceptional commitment to its customers and the trees on their landscape. The company knows that the hot, humid summer months and the stormy weather that sometimes accompanies them can take their toll on tree health in the Spotsylvania area if they don't get a little assistance.

Company spokesperson, Phillip Wood, had this to say about summer tree care, "As tree professionals, we always like to pass on helpful advice to our customers that will help keep their trees healthy and looking great. This new summer tree care article is part of that. A little goes a long way in the summer when it comes to protecting this vital resource that keeps our landscapes looking good and provides a majority of the critical oxygen that we need to live."

The article mentioned that the summer months are not usually the preferred time of the year to do tree trimming but it can be beneficial in the Spotsylvania area if it's done earlier in the summer. This is especially true when it comes to the removal of dead, dying or diseased branches present on the trees in one's landscape. The article also mentioned that early summer tree trimming can be very beneficial for the health of trees that had already bloomed in the spring and have now completely finished with that cycle.

It was also mentioned in the article that the summer months can bring some strong winds and other harsh weather along with them so it's a great time to consider getting rid of nuisance trees. Nuisance trees are ones that are growing too close to homes and buildings, trees that create severe overlapping branch conditions or tree overcrowding, and dead and dying trees. They have the potential to do great damage if they come down during periods of heavy wind or during other severe weather events that the summer months usually bring with them. It's also a good time of year to perform cabling or bracing trees with weak limbs. The article reminds us that consulting with a tree professional like them will help a customer make critical summer tree decisions and that these consultations are done at no charge.

The article can be seen here at <https://mgyb.co/s/summer-tree-care> in its entirety. This is just one of several helpful tree articles that the company has posted on its website.

Wood also wanted to remind people that although the summertime is a preferred time of the year to remove trees, this is something that should always be left to professionals like them. They have the equipment and knowledge necessary to get the job done safely. He says that anything less can have catastrophic results when it comes to property damage or personal injuries.

According to the company spokesperson, Steadfast Tree Care Spotsylvania offers a wide variety of tree services that can be taken advantage of in the summer or other times throughout the year besides just tree trimming and tree removal. This includes tree shaping, crown thinning, and doing tree injections to help unhealthy trees regain their health.

In other news about the company pertaining to the recent crisis sweeping the country; Wood says that they are still providing tree care services to Spotsylvania County during this difficult time. He emphasized they will practice safe social distancing while working on tree trimming or tree removal projects, and also when communicating with property owners when providing a tree service estimate. Wood says that whether it relates to tree work or unusual circumstances like now, safety will always be there #1 priority.

Wood says that those who would like to set up a free tree consultation with them are welcome to get in touch with them by phone, email or by filling out the free quote form on the company's website.
