Arizona Plumbing Expert Services (A.P.E.S.), a plumbing and air and heating contractor based in Peoria, Arizona, has revealed that they are taking Covid19 seriously and are taking every precaution to practice social distancing and other measures to avoid the disease. They want to point out that there's nothing more important than their employees, their families, and customers. Meanwhile, they would also like to inform homeowners that they are open for business and people may call or email them or contact them through the company website to schedule a service. They also want to stress the importance of having the cooling system for a home or building checked before the heat of late spring and summer hits Phoenix and its neighboring areas.

Brian Garrison, owner of Arizona Plumbing Expert Services, says, ?Residential customers should schedule maintenance service for their air conditioners to make sure it's ready to handle the constant work load the hot summers dish out. If a customer feels that their air conditioner is old and maybe on its last legs they should consider replacing it with a new cooling system. A lot of the times in Phoenix when a home is built the home builder throws in any old air conditioner. That doesn't mean that the A/C system is the right size for that home. APES will make sure your home installs the proper sized A/C unit that will cool your home efficiently and save you money on your energy bills.?

According to Brian, a failing HVAC system should not be something that a family has to worry about, especially with the heat of late spring or summer in Arizona. They can help maintain a home's HVAC system and keep it in tip-top condition so that it would be capable of handling any kind of weather that occurs in Phoenix and surrounding areas.

Arizona Plumbing Expert Services will perform a professional assessment of a home's HVAC system and then discuss with the homeowner the various issues that need to be resolved. It could be that a repair of the air conditioning system is required or, in some cases, it may be advisable to have a new air conditioning installed. Whatever the need, they will ensure that they will deliver quality workmanship and products at a reasonable price.

Meanwhile, the company is also capable of providing a solution for various plumbing repair problems, including emergency plumbing in Phoenix and nearby areas. These include sewer repair, water heaters and softeners, slab leaks, Arizona Department of Environmental Quality (ADEQ) septic inspections., septic lift stations, fixture installation, purified drinking systems, and pumps. There is a slab leak when one of the water lines located under the concrete floor of the home has a leak. There are a number of possible signs that there is a slab leak, including a hot spot located on the floor; cracks found in the walls or flooring; the presence of the sound of running water even if all water sources have been turned off; excessively high water bills; and the odor of mildew or too much moisture under carpets. When noticing one of these signs, it is advisable for a homeowner to contact a dependable plumbing company.

Meanwhile, with regards to septic systems, A.P.E.S. can have a certified wastewater technician inspect the system as required by ADEQ. This inspection is a requisite when a property with a septic tank changes ownership. The company will take a look at the county records, perform an on site inspection, make a record of all levels and conditions of the system, eliminate all tank contents, take photographs of the tank and area, and create a seven-page inspection report that includes the layout of the septic system. A copy of this report will be provided to the customer, including a list of suggested maintenance and repair works.

People who are searching for plumbing or air conditioning services, including emergency HVAC in Phoenix, may want to check out the Arizona Plumbing Expert Services website or contact them through the telephone or via email. Brian Garrison says, ?For those who have urgent matters, please call us. Whether its a simple service or an emergency we will come into your home wearing the proper gear to protect you and your loved ones.?
