April 15, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Restoration Logistics, an Emergency Water Damage Clean Up and Drying, Basement Flooding and Emergency Sewage Clean Up with operating Offices in Denver, Boulder and Ft. Collins. Services the Front Range of Colorado from Ft. Collins to Castle Rock, and today has been recognized as being a front runner in the realm of Cost effective drying services and strategies to save structural components in homes and commercial structures.

Restoration Logistics has been operating in the Emergency Restoration Services market for 33 Years and competes against notable businesses such as ServPro and Belfor. They have been able to make such a strong impression on the market and gain reputation by being available with cost effective solutions 24 hours a day. Understanding the disruption emergency situations cause for residences of a house. They are damage minimization specialists.

Eva Szalkai, Restoration Logistics's Owner spoke about its recent recognition, expanding on some of the decisions and motivations that led the business to the level it's currently reached.

"When Restoration Logistics was founded, it was made abundantly clear we wanted to be the kind of company that was known as caring company that helps people in need. One of the biggest challenges we faced was Franchises trying to diminish good work with sub-standard workmanship. Fortunately with some good people behind us, and since our focus is on our clients ... we never allow outside influences to influence our providing the right product or solution to our customers. We have been able to gain a high level of trust with our clientele due to our attention to detail."

Eva Szalkai also mentioned Restoration Logistics's future plans involve continuing the great service we have been known for the past 3 decades. It's the hope of the company that their emergency services will allow occupants of a home or commercial building to recover from unwanted situations with as little hassle as possible.

Restoration Logistics plans to maintain its position at the forefront of, cost effective, drying services and strategies to save structural components in homes and commercial structures for years to come, building on its success, finding new ways to serve its community, customers and the world at large.
