

Cat Lovers Send in Their Rescue Stories from Home During this Pandemic

April 17, 2020

April 17, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Phoenix, Arizona, based CatCuddles has announced a fun, interactive initiative to bring cat enthusiasts together across the USA. Given the present COVID-19 pandemic sweeping throughout the world, this beautifully responsive website wanted to play a small part in keeping feline lovers united, uplifted, and encouraged, despite the current uncertainty. CatCuddles is thrilled to offer all lovers of felines the opportunity to connect with each other through a new feature on their website. This feature encourages owners to submit cute cat pictures, videos, and stories that best represent their fur baby. These will be compiled into individual posts and circulated throughout their social media pages.

Through this platform, the website hopes to provide a virtual meeting place where cat lovers can read touching pet stories, view adorable pictures or videos of cats, and interact with one another. Followers of the CatCuddles social media platforms are invited to share, comment, and like the posts of other feline pets. The site aims to make this amazing feature a means of bringing hope and support to those cat lovers struggling during this crisis.

Whether a cat was adopted, rescued, or raised from birth, all stories are welcome to be submitted through the feature on the CatCuddles website. Each of these stories provide meaningful, moving content to inspire any feline lover. Whether it is a fun, entertaining story, or one that is heartfelt, there are some for everyone to enjoy. Readers can become educated on specific breeds like the hairless cat.

One pet story that was submitted to the website's newly introduced area showcases both the heartbreaking beginning and the happy start for a beautiful Tuxedo cat named Daisy. "She was adopted from the local animal shelter. They had her in the "naughty unadoptable" section. We went over to her cage and she reached her paw out to us. She has been the most loving and friendly cat. She runs up to any visitors to get attention from them. I can't remember life before getting her. She is our rescued love bug," says Daisy's owner, Karen. Stories like these bring smiles to people anytime.

While touching stories are always heart-stirring to read, the site is set on providing stories that are amusing and cheerful as well. One such story describes the life of Houdini, a fluffy and mischievous cat that has a unique knack escaping enclosures. Houdini's owner, Elizabeth, took her in off the streets. Since being taken in, Houdini has birthed 5 beautiful kittens. Now, Houdini is content to be brushed and fed treats each day.

The CatCuddles website and social media pages contain many more stories of heartbreak, hope, and happiness for all lovers of cats to enjoy. In addition, they host many other valuable feline resources for feline owners. This includes a directory of veterinarians and no-kill shelters for each state and city. Important information on feline health and wellness is also available. All are invited to visit the CatCuddles website to learn more.

###

For more information about CatCuddles, contact the company here: CatCuddles Steve Miller (800) 459-0519 news@catcuddles.com Steve Miller 4400 N Scottsdale Rd. Suite 9-285 Scottsdale, AZ 85251 support@goodpooch.com <https://goodpooch.com>

CatCuddles

We offer cat health and specific cat breed information, as well as cat owner's rescue and adoption stories and giveaways.

Website: <https://catcuddles.com>

Email: news@catcuddles.com

Phone: (800) 459-0519

