April 17, 2020 -

Minneapolis, Mn. - Viking Trophies, a corporate supplies store in Minneapolis, MN has offered a few suggestions for how to successfully work from home amidst the Coronavirus pandemic. Viking Trophies was happy to share their catalog of various corporate supplies with the Minneapolis/St. Paul community this month as thousands of businesses temporarily close to work remotely.

Many people that are now working from home are faced with the challenge of having a proper office set up. Although everyone dreams of being able to work from home on their couch in their pajamas, it is not necessarily practical to maintain productivity.

Professionals might need supplies such as notepads, pens, pencils, paperweights and many other supplies to get their jobs done every day. The problem is not having those supplies already. Part of Viking Trophies? wide arrangement of business supplies includes these popular desk items.

Corporate signs and banners in Minneapolis, MN are also necessary during the pandemic. Customers everywhere are constantly looking to see what businesses are still open, and if so, when they are open.

Viking Trophies is also a supplier of various signs and banners that companies can use to advertise their hours of service during this time. They recommend informing all customers through as many different channels as possible to avoid frustration and maintain goodwill.

Besides providing many different products to help businesses during the Coronavirus pandemic, Viking Trophies has also been able to assist their community through many different digital outlets. Their social media presence on Facebook has been very helpful in posting engaging content on keeping busy and staying successful online as opposed to in person. Viking Trophies even shared an article recently about how individuals can still be successful entrepreneurs online.
