April 23, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Clarkesville, GA based Oliver & Weidner LLC is pleased to inform the communities they serve that their legal counsel and all associated services will continue to be available despite the COVID-19 outbreak and the lockdown set in place to combat its spread. The North GA law firm is adamant that their clients have access to all the legal counsel they desire, and they assert that they are taking every precaution possible to ensure the safety of their staff as well as all who seek the benefit of their expertise.

The Shelter-In-Place initiatives enacted by states across the US have not meant that any pre-existing problems have ceased to exist. Rather, the progress of many cases has slowed to a crawl or been put on hold until normal activity can be resumed. Oliver & Weidner LLC observes, however, that not all services have to come to a standstill at this time (and many have not). In fact, many people may even be able to use this opportunity to reach out to the firm's attorneys in order to obtain the advice they need.

"Many of us are discovering that we have nothing but time," states the firm. "While we understand it can be difficult to stay productive while being compelled to stay at home for everyone's safety, we are doing everything in our power to maintain your access to our services. This means you can finally get the legal aid you were unable to pursue before. Additionally, our existing clients may reach out to us to check in on the progress of their cases and whether there is anything else either we or they can do to move things forward while we wait for normal operations to resume. If there is an advantage to be had in these times, we will help you find it.?

Given the firm's existing technological infrastructure, Oliver & Weidner LLC asserts that they can continue to hold discussions with their clients via digital means, thereby ensuring that no physical contact is necessary. In the event that online messaging, video conferences and so on are not enough, the firm may be able to make additional accommodations. Clients are welcome to inquire further if they have need to do so.

In particular, they encourage the members of their community to get in touch if they have questions pertaining to personal injury law or real estate. The cessation of normal life, for instance, has not meant that victims who have suffered injuries as a result of the negligent actions of another person or entity have found themselves better off as a result. Instead, the opposite may be true as their cases have been effectively suspended for the time being, extending the period they need to wait before they receive the compensation they deserve. The firm will remain accessible to all these individuals in order to ensure that they remain up to date with the most recent progress of their case and what steps they can take as soon as the lockdown is lifted.

The same is true for those who have found that they were able to shift their work schedule from their office to their home. The firm points out that these individuals likely have more time on their hands since they no longer have to commute back and forth from their place of employment. Should they wish to capitalize on this time to explore their legal options with a personal injury lawyer or another expert, such as a real estate attorney, the firm will be more than happy to respond.

Oliver & Weidner LLC specializes in a few distinct areas of legal practice, namely: Personal Injury, Real Estate, Divorce, Criminal Litigation & DUI, Contracts, Corporate/Business Law, Adoption and so on. A full list of their areas of expertise may be found on their website. Many of these fields of law deal with cases of vital importance that can have life-changing implications for the parties involved.

As they state on their website, the firm, "provides legal services for companies and individuals. The firm practices in all levels of Federal and State Court Systems throughout Georgia, and the Supreme Court of the United States. Since the firm's inception, we have closed over $1,730,000,000.00 in real estate transactions; and the firm, either solely or as co-counsel, has settled or successfully tried to a jury verdict litigation matters in excess of $62,000,000.00 all of which was fully collected and paid to our clients."
