With storm season approaching, Marriott & Sons Roofing is urging customers to book a professional roof inspection to check for damage in case it requires repairs. Fixing repairs ahead of storm season can save time and money long-term.

Additionally, installing new shingles ahead of storm season allows more time for the shingles to bond to the roof before winter weather, such as rain or snow, arrives. The new hail-resistant shingles launched by Marriott & Sons Roofing are designed to prevent damage to roofing that is typically hard to detect.

Marriott & Sons Roofing is proud to have a team of expert roofers with years of experience working on residential roofs. Each team member works hard to ensure that all customers are given the best service and the best roof for their homes. Marriott & Sons Roofing offers roof inspections, roof repairs, and full roof replacements, including extra services like roofing upgrades and style changes as part of their mission to offer the best roofing services in the greater Georgetown area. A focus on customer service and quality materials is a major part of Marriott & Sons Roofing?s success.

Unidentified hail damage can prematurely reduce the life of the roof, leading to leaks, wood rot, mold or mildew. All these issues can cause further damage and eventually health problems for people living within the property.

The longer issues go undetected and therefore untreated, the worse the damage can be. This in turn can increase the length of time required to complete the repair, along with the overall cost. After hailstorms, it is advisable to seek professional advice and ideally find a contractor to inspect the roof for damage.

Marriott & Sons Roofing provides a professional inspection service for customers who face storm damage in Glen Burnie, Crofton, Severn, Ferndale, Arnold, Jacobsville, and throughout Maryland. Aside from roofing repairs, replacement and maintenance, the company offers exterior improvements to siding and guttering at competitive and affordable prices.

Providing higher quality shingles and roofing materials is a critical selling point for Marriott & Sons Roofing and is further evidence of their commitment to provide the highest quality service to their customers throughout Maryland. The Glen Burnie roofing contractor encourages homeowners, commercial property owners, architects, and builders in the area to visit its website to view the new online service expansion and to find up-to-date information about their roofing repair services and total roof replacements and to see how Marriott & Sons Roofing can help them to get the best roofing solution for their residential property.

A company spokesperson said, ?When dealing with nature, the key to success is preparedness.
