Colorado company Celltronix has announced the release of a 2-in-1 USB cable for smartphones, tablet PCs, and other mobile gadgets. The cable has been receiving rave reviews since its launch, and currently has five star reviews from various customers.

The cable can replace several cables with the convenience of just one 2 in 1 charger, which gives users more room behind PCs, in the car, and in multiport wall chargers, making it easier for consumers to get rid of cluttered cords and use only one cable for a number of charging needs.

"We've designed it to replace a number of cables. I mean, this thing works as an iPhone 5 charger, or with any other smartphone you may have," says Carlos of Celltronix.

The cable features interchangeable ends from micro USB to 8 pin connector for complete freedom of movement between mobile devices. It fits a number of devices, so there is need for only one charging cable, and not several cables to go with every device in the home.

The cable is flat and 3.3 feet long, so it takes up less room than a standard charging cable. It is specifically designed for iPhone 6.6 in addition to the 5S, 5C, 5 iPad 4 Air Mini, Mini with retina display, iPad touch 5th generation, Samsung Galaxy smartphones in various models, Edge Note 3 and 4, Blackberry, Motorola, Nokia, and a number of other manufacturer's devices.

Melanie, an Amazon customer, had this to say about the cable: "It's great for everything I own. I mean, I have a smartphone, tablet, and a couple other things that I hook it up to and it works perfectly for all of them."

Celltronix offers a variety of consumer electronics and accessories, including their latest release, the 2 in 1 Micro USB cable. They offer a number of headsets, phone cases, stylus pens, and other wireless devices for a wide range of electronics manufacturers, including USB chargers, headphones, and various iPad and iPhone accessories.
