Gainesville, Ga.- Beltone, one of the nation's leading hearing care center in Gainesville, GA, has announced that it will now offer appointments via real-time video for all hearing care needs. The service will be offered from more than 1,500 Beltone Hearing Centers within North America. This service will reduce the need for in-office visits at a time when older clients are now at high-risk to contracting COVID-19 and advised to remain at home.

Beltone Remote Care Live provides hearing care professionals the ability to consult with patients face-to-face via video. While also allowing for hearing professionals to make hearing aids adjustments remotely by simply using the Beltone HearMax phone app. The hearing adjustments will update in real time for the user.

Recognizing that COVID-19, is a serious issue for most patients who are using hearing aids, providing the telehealth services can be an extremely useful tool for both hearing care professionals in Gainesville, GA, and their patients.

?We are fully committed to helping our patients through this difficult time and have accelerated the launch of this service to do exactly that. Remote Care Live becomes even more important as patient access to in-person hearing care is limited as communities across the country implement various ?stay home? policies to help minimize COVID-19 spread,? says Monte Dillow, president, Beltone.

?We?ve seen the growth of telemedicine in many medical settings, but it has been a recent introduction to hearing care,? Dillow continues. ?With Beltone Remote Care Live, we take it to a new level, making it easier for our patients and their families to access the hearing care they need.?
