New York City, NY ? The New York City personal injury lawyers at Banville Law have announced the date of their next informational webinar on how to handle mistreatment at a nursing home.

"On April 30th, 2020, at 9:30 PM, our experienced legal team will discuss what individuals should do if they or someone they love has suffered personal injuries caused by neglect of care at a nursing facility. It can be shocking for the family of victims involved because placing a loved one in a nursing home is already a difficult decision to be made. In this webinar, we hope to provide guidance towards the best proactive steps to take to seek compensation for victims affected," shares Laurence Banville, the managing attorney at Banville Law.

For years, the injury attorneys in New York City at Banville Law have represented residents of New York City and neighboring areas. The law firm handles other types of personal injury cases caused by slip and falls, car, truck and motorcycle accidents, and work injuries.

Mr. Banville concludes, "Nursing home abuse cases are one of the most fundamental cases our office handles. If the enjoyment of life is neglected due to lack of care or mistreatment, legal action is a serious step to consider. Our legal team expresses care and compassion when handling nursing home abuse or neglect cases, as our priority is our client's best interest."
