April 24, 2020 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

A local company, Pest Control of Indianapolis, has announced they are providing pest control services to other properties, in addition to residential homes. This includes businesses and other properties that require expert pest solutions. However, the business owner stated that while they service more than one type of property, the treatments provided will be different.

"We believe that in order to supply the results that property owners really want, the treatment plan needs to be customized to address their property's individual pest concerns. This includes handling any existing pests and offering assistance to prevent the pests from returning later on," the business owner stated.

Certain properties will face different pest challenges than other properties. For example, a restaurant will likely have issues with rodents and roaches. A residential home will likely have issues with smaller insects like ants, flies, fleas, spiders, and so on.

The company manager said, "One factor that plays a role in preventing pests in any property is inspecting the exterior of the structure to identify any faults that are allowing the pests to come inside. At Pest Control of Indianapolis IN we can help property owners find the entry points of the bugs or rodents on their property, and then recommend the best way to seal or repair them. Once you do this, handling any pests that are inside the property becomes much easier.?

Some pests can carry diseases including rodents and cockroaches, and other pests can infest a property in no time; bed bugs and fleas. The business owner said that the sooner action is taken against any pest issue the more likely residents will see desirable results.

Waiting around for the bugs to go away will not work. The manger added, ?We encourage folks to contact us if they find a bug or think they have a problem. Talking with a professional can help you better understand the problem you?re facing and sometimes you can get superior results without the help of a pro. But regardless we feel it?s always best to call a professional.?
